VACATION A LETDOWN?

Educator claims children have more fun in school

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Millions of children are about to put their books aside and start summer vacation, but one educator says they'd rather stay in school because learning is fun and sitting in the sun at the ol' fishing hole can be a bore.

"The modern school has become so stimulating and interesting that summer can be a letdown to a child," Dr. Bradley Loomer, a professor of education at the University of Iowa, said in an interview.

He estimated 80 per cent of America's children enjoy school more than their parents did and don't relish vacation as much.

"Most households are sterile as learning centers and kids don't get a chance to stretch mentally," Loomer said. "There's television and that's about it."

The educator said most parents are not meeting the challenge of making summer vacation as interesting as classroom activities.

"Parents are unware of the things going on in schools today," he said. "They have only their past to draw from when it was mostly sitting and reading."

Vacation takes up one-fourth of a child's learning years — three out of 12 years he or she will spend in elementary and high schools — and that is too much time to waste in humdrum or mere entertainment, he said.

"Mental development drops off during the summer break for a great many children because there is no home stimulus," Loomer said.

Most kids would rather think of summer as a time to learn as many new things as possible, he said, and are ready to be up and doing things by the time they would start school.

Loomer suggested that parents group possible summer activities in categories that will help a child's mental, emotional, social and physical development and those that will "brush up" a child's reading, computation and verbal-communication skills.

Most children today are emotionally well-balanced and feel good about themselves, he said, but summer group activities help them learn more about their strengths and weakness and ways to overcome the latter.

Travel is a challenge for a child, but Loomer estimated that less than 25 per cent of American families now take such vacations.

"An ideal situation would be to keep schools open on an information basis — as sort of a resource center — for kids in the summer," he said. "But the problem there is economics."

FAA officials among 44 air crash victims

AGANA, Guam (AP)—Forty-four persons, including one person on the ground, were reported dead after an Air Manila propjet crashed early today shortly after takeoff from Guam International Airport, authorities said.

An eyewitness said the plane was reduced to ashes and the sky filled with smoke after the incident at about 1 a.m. EDT.

A spokesman for the U.S. Naval Regional Medical Center here said the dead included 43 persons aboard the plane and a driver of a pickup truck.

Naval sources on Guam said some passengers were believed to be Federal Aviation Administration inspectors on the island to check damage wrought by Typhoon Pamela when it slammed into this Central Pacific Island in May.

Another witness said the Lockheed Electra, flight 702, appeared to be attempting a crash landing when its tail hit a fence, sending it nose-first into an open field about 100 yards from several unoccupied houses.

The house apparently were undamaged, authorities said.

One of about 30 asbestos-suited Navy fireman called in to fight the blaze was injured and taken from the scene in an ambulance, said a spokesman.

Reagan hikes lead in last state poll; strong support for Brown

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ronald Reagan has substantially widened his lead over President Ford in the latest California Poll survey of Republicans planning to vote in next Tuesday's presidential primary election.

Among Democrats interviewed in the same poll, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has more support for his party's presidential nomination than all his rivals combined.

Reagan, who preceded Brown as governor, leads Ford by 24 percentage points, 56 to 32 per cent, with 12 per cent undecided, in the nonpartisan poll taken earlier in the week and released today by Mervin D. Field.

In a poll taken a month ago, Reagan led Ford by 10 percentage points — 49 to 39 per cent with 12 per cent undecided. In March, Ford led Reagan by five percentage points in the sampling by the independent, statewide survey.

The President trailed Reagan 54 per cent to 37 per cent in a January sampling of California Republicans.

Meanwhile, Brown's level of support increased from 45 per cent in the May poll to 51 per cent in the latest survey by the Field Research Corp.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, the front-runner in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, got 20 percent in this last California Poll before the state's primary, a drop of 2 per cent.

Brown and Carter are followed in the poll by Sen. Frank Church of Idaho with 9 per cent, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona with 6 per cent and Alabama Gov. George Wallace and Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington with 2 per cent each.

The winner of the Republican primary gets all 167 of the state's delegates. In the Democratic primary, the 280 delegates are distributed under a proportional system weighted in favor of the winner and second-place finisher.

The California Poll is sold to newspaper and broadcast subscribers.

In the latest poll, 556 registered Democrats and 375 registered Republicans in California's 18 most populous counties were interviewed by telephone Monday through Wednesday.

Republicans were asked who they would vote for on the same day of the interview — Ford or Reagan. Democrats were asked a similar question but with nine choices.

Britain, France decide against more Concordes

PARIS (AP) — France and Britain have decided against building more Concorde supersonic airplanes beyond the 16 already planned, French Transport Minister Marcel Cavaillet said today.

But he added the Concorde builders are studying the possiblities of improved models and further international cooperation on supersonic projects.

Air France reported separately that it carried 5,053 passengers and was loaded at an average of 70.2 per cent of capacity in the four months since Concorde service started on the Paris-Dakar-Rio de Janeiro route.

The airline has figured it needs to be loaded at 61 per cent to break even on Concorde service once it has four of the supersonic aircraft in service.

Cavaillet told the French parliament that it would be unreasonable to build more than the 16 planes now scheduled.

HHH says Carter has lost zip; will take last look

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, declaring that Jimmy Carter has "lost a lot of his zip," says he will be watching Carter's performance in Tuesday's three big primaries, with a view to reassessing his own posture of not actively campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

If Carter has fewer than 1,200 to 1,300 delegates solidly nailed down after the primary elections in California, New Jersey and Ohio, Humphrey will begin feeling out the sentiments of party leaders about an active candidacy of his own, he said Thursday night in an interview.

"I would be cautious, conservative and prudent. I don't want to make any judgments that would lead to serious political mistakes," Humphrey said. "I'm not interested in running any kind of 'stop' movement and I certainly don't want the party divided."

Humphrey said his first move would be to try and determine if the uncommitted delegates who have been elected really are uncommitted and what their preferences are.

Leaders of a move to draft Humphrey announced Wednesday they had contacted nearly 400 uncommitted convention delegates and "the overwhelming majority have indicated a preference for Sen. Humphrey."

Humphrey had said previously he would not enter any primaries but would be available for a draft if one developed.

Pointing out that Carter now has over 900 delegates that are officially his, Humphrey said, "Carter has a significant lead now. If he came out of the next three primaries with a substantial number of delegates, he'd be in a position" to win.

"That's it ... It would be futile to try to step in and I would not do it." But, he added, "It's still my judgment that it's likely not to be a first ballot victory. The question is what, if anything, I could or should do."

House okays measure to develop cleaner, fuel-efficient cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill authorizing $20 million to kick off a five-year effort to develop ways to build a cleaner and more fuel-efficient automobile has passed the House and been sent to the Senate.

Under the measure, which could involve expenditures of $150 million during the five-year period, three federal agencies would spearhead the drive for ways to build automobiles that drink less fuel and emit less noxious fumes.

The measure — passed by the House 296 to 86 on Thursday — provides for a research and development program in advanced automotive propulsion systems. The research likely would include improvements in internal combustion engines, electric drive, gas turbines, diesel and steam systems.

Some $20 million would be authorized for the year beginning Oct. 1, and future appropriations would be made as Congress deems appropriate.

Inflation picture also brightens

Jobless rate dips to 7.3%

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government had good news in unemployment and inflation statistics today, reporting that the nation's jobless rate fell from 7.5 to 7.3 per cent in May while wholesale price increases slowed.

The drop in the unemployment rate brought an end to a two-month period in which joblessness had not improved.

Wholesale prices rose only three-tenths of a per cent last month, after surging eight-tenths of a per cent in April, the Labor Department said. The May performance eased fears of a new round of heavy inflation, at least temporarily.

The economic reports, coming only four days before the last round of presidential primaries, could be a plus for President Ford, who credits his policies for the improving economic picture.

Ford told reporters that the slowing rate of inflation was "extremely significant because it indicates that our battle against inflation is really making headway."

He said the drop in unemployment "should encourage the American people that the administration's anti-inflation, job-producing program is a good one."

Asked if the economic reports might help him in the final primaries and the November election, Ford said: "It may have an impact on both. I certainly hope so."

In its price report, the Labor Department said a six-tenths of a per cent increase in farm prices and a one-tenth of a per cent rise in industrial goods held the over-all increase to only three-tenths of a per cent in May.

The combined job and price reports presented a picture of an expanding economy with moderate inflation.

The jobless rate had reached a recession peak of 8.9 per cent.

Moretti endorses Carter, claims Brown unqualified for presidency

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Former Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti says Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., a former political opponent, is unqualified to be president.

Moretti made the statement Thursday in announcing his endorsement of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter for the Democratic nomination.

Moretti ran against Brown in 1974 for the Democratic nomination for governor, placing third after San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto.

But Moretti endorsed Brown for the general election, and was named by the governor to a $37,212-a-year job as state energy commissioner.

Moretti told a news conference, "I simply don't believe Gov. Brown is qualified to be president of this country. I don't believe that a record of accomplishment in California exists that would indicate that in fact he is ready to go to the White House."

He also predicted that his criticism of Brown would lead to "some detrimental repercussions."

In addition, Moretti said Brown has not clearly stated his views on the nuclear power initiative and school financing.

Strikers disrupt Alameda County

OAKLAND (AP) — The second strike of government employes in the San Francisco Bay area this spring is disrupting health and welfare services in Alameda County, neighbor of the earlier strike victim, San Francisco.

Alameda County officials said 3,100 of the 5,500 members of three Service Employes International Union locals were off the job in the second day of the walkout Thursday. A union spokesman put the figure at 3,600.

In San Francisco's 38-day strike, which ended May 8, 1,800 of the city's 18,000 workers left their jobs. As members of crafts union such as plumbers and electricians, they are among the highest paid of non-management employes.

The Alameda County strikers, many low-paid clerks, began their walkout Wednesday in a dispute over pay and work rules. Union negotiator John Bowers says the union wants a 7.6 per cent increase in wages and fringe benefits to match the boost granted management, while the county is offering a 4.2 per cent package.

Reports of sabotage include water found in the fuel tanks of two county vans, more than 100 typewriter fonts missing in welfare and probation offices and pickets pounding on cars trying to park near administration offices.

The most serious impact is being felt in health and welfare services, whereas in San Francisco the major inconvenience was in public transportation, which was halted when bus and trolley drivers honored picket lines.

Less than one-third of the nurses at Highland Hospital have shown up for work and only emergency services are available at the facility. About 45 of the hospital's normal compliment of 150 patients were being treated, the rest having been transferred to private facilities.

Three mental health units in Oakland were closed, as were welfare and health offices in Berkeley and Fremont.

ARTIST AT WORK

Jon Gagnon, born amid the influence of nature in Nashua, N.H., is one of many artists participating in the Master Art Expo at the Montclair Plaza through Sunday. This features artists throughout the world. They are located on the mall. The harmonious New England surroundings were early determining factors to Gagnon in producing his unique style of painting. Other artists include Poon Tai To, recently selected as the most talented deaf painter in the U.S. by the Deaf American magazine, and Carl Sagovich, who specializes in European type oils and Batiks. His paintings have the misty look of peace but colors are bold.

Coastal bill hurt by conflict over funds

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of the coastal conservation bill have suffered a setback in the state Senate.

The loss came Thursday when the upper house approved an amendment by Sen. Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, that could create problems in funding the commission the bill would set up.

The amendment, approved on a 19-17 vote, cut $1.5 million out of the Senate budget bill. The money was suppose to fund the commission through the first half of 1977.

The budget bill that the Assembly approved last week includes the $1.5 million, so Thursday's vote turns the funding issue over to the joint conference committee that will hammer out a compromise budget.

If the commission money is not included in the final budget it would pose serious problems for the bill's author, Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Los Angeles.

He would either have to include the funding in the coastal bill or introduce another measure next year providing the money.

Either way, Beilenson would need two-thirds votes in both the Assembly and Senate to approve the funds.

Beilenson left the money out of the coastal bill so the measure would need only bare majorities to win legislative approval. Supporters expect a close vote in the Senate even without the funds in the bill.

The measure is patterned after the coastal master plan drawn up under Prop. 20, the 1972 coastal initiative.

Under the bill, local coastal governments would have to bring their coastal land use plans into line with the bill's objectives.

Those goals include concentrating construction in already developed areas, protecting coastal farm, timber and wetlands, and providing greater public access to beaches.

The coastal commission would serve as an appeals board for citizens who felt their local government was not carrying out the measure's objectives.

Carpenter admitted he wanted to make the coastal bill a two-thirds-vote measure, but he said including the funds in the budget would violate a practice followed by lawmakers last year.

Under that procedure, money for a new program was cut from the budget if legislation creating the program had not yet been approved.

"The money's not in the bill because they want to keep it at 21 votes (a majority of the 40-member Senate)," he said. "So they go out and stick it in the budget. That ain't right, gentlemen. I object."

Beilenson said the funds for the coastal commission were an exception to the rule because the money was, in effect, funding an existing agency, the temporary commission set up by Prop. 20.

Want peace, not war in Rhodesia—Reagan

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Ronald Reagan says he wants to achieve peace in Rhodesia — not start a war.

But the former California governor, campaigning against President Ford before California's June 8 Republican primary, denied Thursday that he was backing off his earlier comments on Rhodesia.

"Let's get one thing straight," the 65-year-old candidate told reporters in a firm tone at a Santa Barbara airport rally, "I'm not talking about sending troops to Rhodesia."

Added Reagan, who had criticized news accounts of his remarks on Rhodesia, added: "First they tried to say I want to start a war over the (Panama) Canal, and that didn't work. Now they're saying I want a war over Rhodesia. I don't."

Reagan was responding to the stir created by his remarks Wednesday in Sacramento, where he suggested a token force of American troops, might be sent to Rhodesia to help guarantee the peace there between warring factions.

At the airport rally, one of about a half dozen protesters on hand carried a sign saying, "Hell No, We Won't Go to Panama, Rhodesia."

Aides to Reagan denied their candidate's statements on Rhodesia were any shift from his position Wednesday.

"Reagan is saying as part of peace-keeping after mediation...then perhaps we might send a token contingent to help maintain that peace," said Jim Lake, Reagan's press secretary.

During the day, Reagan took a break from the controversy over the Rhodesia remarks to drive with a group of reporters and Secret Service agents to his ranch high in the hills about 25 miles north of Santa Barbara.

There, Reagan took reporters on a brief tour of the single-story ranch house on his 688-acre spread, and he relaxed there better than anyplace else.

Reagan, dressed in a dark blue business suit, white shirt and red and blue striped tie, seemed to enjoy sharing his get-away home with reporters.

Rapping a wooden dining room table with his knuckles, Reagan gestured through the window to a small man-made lake and green lawn and said, "But this, to sit here in the evening and watch the sun get low."

It was the first time Reagan had allowed a large group of reporters to visit the ranch. Photographers were barred from taking pictures.

Later, talking to a Solvang cocktail party, Reagan mentioned his visit to the ranch and said he has gone there "to see how the grass is growing."

Earlier in the day, in a speech to Monterey supporters, Reagan said he was focusing on his California presidential campaign. He said he expected to pick up delegates but not to win victories in either Ohio or New Jersey.

Kentucky firms fight Prop. 15

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Some of Kentucky's largest corporations have reportedly contributed $14,500 to an effort to defeat an anti-nuclear power measure that will appear on the California ballot Tuesday.

The Louisville Courier-Journal reported today that reports filed with the California secretary of state listed four Kentucky companies as contributors to the drive. Those firms and the amounts reportedly contributed were:

—Kentucky Utilities Co. of Lexington, $6,000.

—Ashland Oil, Inc., $5,000.

—The Henry Vogt Machine Co. of Louisville, $1,000.

—The Tube Turns Division of the Chemtron Corp., $2,500.

The reports also reveal that the two Indiana utilities that will build and own the major share of the proposed Marble Hill Nuclear Power Plant on the Ohio River near Madison, Ind. have given $7,500 to the drive.

Public Service Co. of Indiana was listed as having contributed $6,000 and Northern Indiana Public Service Co., $1,500.

Also listed as a contributor was General Electric Co., the leading employer in Kentucky and a leading manufacturer of nuclear power reactors, who has given $199,878.

The state's second largest employer, Ford Motor Co., has reported giving $20,000 thus far.

The issue on the California ballot —"Proposition 15"— would not impose an outright ban on new nuclear plants in California but would achieve the same end, critics say.

L.A. tax increase okayed by council

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Property owners will bear the brunt of a tax hike next year, which follows City Council approval of a balanced budget $2.1 million higher than requested by Mayor Tom Bradley.

The Council Thursday approved a record $983.5 million 1976-77 budget carrying a one cent boost in the municipal property tax.

Avoids Prop. 15 stand

Brown signs nuclear bills

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Without taking a position on Prop. 15, California's nuclear power initiative, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has won some applause from both sides of the nuclear debate.

Brown started Thursday with a press conference where a labor official cited approvingly his non-endorsement of Prop. 15, and ended it with a San Diego rally where a youthful audience cheered his call for a nuclear slowdown.

In between, the Democratic governor walked a tightrope on the controversial ballot measure in signing three bills imposing milder, but potentially important, restrictions on nuclear plants.

The issue was raised repeatedly in the first full day of Brown's final push for a major share of the 280 delegates in next Tuesday's California Democratic presidential primary.

On the one hand, Brown said, the bills "go a long way toward meeting the concerns" about nuclear power. On the other hand, he still has "serious questions" about nuclear development, and considers "overstated" the claims that nuclear curtailment will cause economic disaster.

And finally, Brown tried to turn his refusal to take a public stance on the initiative into an endorsement of the democratic process.

"I suggest that the people of this state look not to experts but to themselves," he said. "This is an opportunity for the people to speak and for those of us in government to listen.

"...I'm not going to weight the scales by creating the impression that the authority of the state, and all the expertise that supposedly goes with it, has a better fix on what side of that issue is more compatible with the future."

The bills are the strictest state laws on the subject in the nation. They ban construction of new nuclear plants until the state Energy Commission declares that methods exist to store radioactive wastes permanently and that satisfactory methods are available to reprocess nuclear fuel.

Also required is a study of the feasibility of locating reactors underground, although a last-minute amendment exempted two plants still on the drawing board from any requirement for underground construction.

The Energy Commission's finding of safety could be vetoed by either house of the legislature.

The bills, unlike Prop. 15, do not affect existing plants. The initiative would phase out all nuclear plants in the state unless the legislature declared by a two-thirds vote that they were safe.

At a morning news conference in Los Angeles, Bill Robertson of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor, after saying Brown "best meets the needs of working people," was asked about the nuclear issue.

He noted Brown's neutrality on Prop. 15, and said "most of labor strongly objects" to the measure.

The audience was very different at a late-afternoon campaign rally of about 1,000 people, most no older than their early 20s, in a courtyard of San Diego's downtown convention center.

Brown stressed environmental themes, and drew cheers when he called for federal investment in such energy sources as geothermal power "instead of laying all our money on the quick technological fix of nuclear reactors. I think we ought to slow down."

He also called for tougher auto emission standards and fewer freeways.

2 solons irked, back Prop. 15

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two legislators who supported the nuclear power plant safeguard bills say Prop. 15 should also be passed.

The two, Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, and Sen. Nate Holden, D-Culver City, issued statements Thursday, shortly after the bills were signed into law.

Prop. 15, the Nuclear Power Plants Initiative, will go before the voters in Tuesday's primary election.

Keene, chairman of the Assembly Health Committee, said the bills were amended into "severely watered-down versions" of the originals.

The amendments granted exemptions to some nuclear reactors now in the planning stages, and weakened the legislative review requirement.

Prop. 15 is more stringent than the bills, mainly in applying retroactively to present nuclear plants and requiring a two-thirds vote of the legislature on safety systems and unlimited liability insurance.

Holden said the bills "do not go quite far enough toward insuring nuclear safety."

Driving team to appear at plaza

The Tom Anthony precision driving team will present a one-hour demonstration Saturday at the Montclair Plaza.

The show, lasting from 11 a.m. to noon, will include both motorcycles and automobiles. Drivers will perform film driving scenes for the television series "Rockford Files" and for car commercials, said plaza officials.

The driving show is being given to support the "Race for Life" benefit Sunday at the Grand Prix race track in Pomona. Proceeds will go to St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Los Angeles.

4,600 summer jobs for needy area kids

More than 4,600 summer jobs will be offered to disadvantaged youths in the valley, starting June 14, Los Angeles County Supervisor Peter Schabarum announced today.

The jobs will pay $2.30 an hour. Job applications are now available at work experience offices of local schools and at the offices of the California Employment Development Department.

The First District Supervisor said the part-time jobs will be offered to boys and girls 14 to 18 whose families earn less than the federal poverty ceilings: $5,500 for a family of four, $7,300 for a family of six and $9,100 for a family of eight.

Jobs will run through Sept. 3 and will provide 200 hours of work over a 12-week period. Top earnings for the summer will be $460.

Three thousand of the jobs are in Pomona. Work also will be offered in Claremont, San Dimas, La Verne, Walnut, Diamond Bar, Rowland Heights, and Valinda.

Speaker of House

Signs growing that Albert will retire

PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Carl Albert will announce within the next week he will not seek re-election, according to reliable sources here.

Sources within the House leadership predict the long anticipated announcement will be made Monday.

Although the retirement is not confirmed, House Majority Whip John McFall, D-Calif., told reporters Thursday morning that Albert would announce his decision "in two or three days."

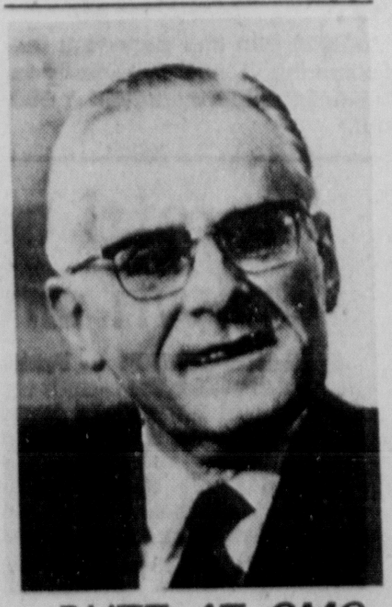

McFall claimed he does not know what Albert's decision will be but other sources here say the Oklahoman will call it quits after serving 28 years in the House, the last six as Speaker.

Longtime friends and colleague Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla., has been predicting Albert would not seek re-election, and reiterated that belief Wednesday night.

"I just get that feeling from watching him day in and day out," Steed said. "I know the man and I know how to read him. He is just exhibiting a state of mind that indicates to me he's made a decision."

Thursday's information is the most convincing yet that Albert will leave the House, and McFall's statement concerning an announcement by Albert about his future lends credibility to predictions.

Albert's impending decision will come after much thought, according to sources close to him. The 68-year-old Speaker has been under intense pressure from some colleagues to retire. That, coupled with poor health over the past few years and criticism of his leadership probably tipped the scales.

BUTZ AT CMC

Earl L. Butz, U.S. secretary of agriculture, will be the commencement speaker Sunday at Claremont Men's College. He will talk on "Old Beginning for New People" at 2 p.m. in Badgley Garden.

Claremont planners add a through street, okay tract

The Claremont Planning Commission finally has recommended for approval tentative map and conditional use permit for a 16.7-acre subdivision of 85 houses built on a condominium concept.

The tract, part of a 32.8-acre development by P. E. Howard Construction Co., stretches from the end of Blaisdell Drive on the west to Claremont Boulevard on the east.

Bone of contention was whether Blaisdell Drive should be a cul-de-sac street and not go through the proposed tract or whether it should go through.

Blaisdell residents do not want increased traffic flow, but the city staff, the police department and the fire department all called for a through street, and the commission by a 4-3 vote pushed it through Tuesday night.

The developer filed his application fee Feb. 4, but the commission had concern for the design of the tract and spent many hours discussing alternatives. The commission finally certified the Environmental Impact Report on the tract April 21.

About 1.7 acres will serve as recreational open space in the interior of the site.

Traffic will enter the tract either from Blaisdell Drive or from Claremont Boulevard.

The tentative tract map will go to the City Council for approval, and then to the Architectural Commission for review.

The Planning Commission Tuesday night set 23 conditions for the permit.

The conditions call for wheelchair ramps where the public open space abuts the street right-of-way, at intersections, corners and sidewalks; sidewalks at the edge of the street; automatic garage door openers on every garage; insulation of all homes to meet the state noise insulation standards; location of air conditioners approved by city planning director; and no parking or storing of any boat, camper, recreational vehicle or similar equipment.

In other matters, the commission continued discussion until the next meeting of a tract between Base Line Road and the proposed Foothill Freeway right-of-way. Commissioners must decide whether the present zoning of single-family 10,000-square-foot lots is the appropriate use.

The commission has recommended for approval a tentative map and a conditional use permit for a residential unit development of 104 lots on 40 acres south of Miramar Avenue, east of Bonnie Brae Drive, and west of Mills Avenue.

In still another matter, the commission asked the staff for a report on a home occupation permit for Mrs. Rosa Torrez, 148 Cornell Ave.

The city staff had denied renewal of the permit because it specifically violates a code requirement, but Mrs. Torrez told the commission that the permits had been renewed several years for her to sell plants and flowers on weekends at her home.

The commission also conducted its annual review of a conditional use permit for Griswold's to hold its weekend art fair.

Major staff concerns were deterioration of the lawn, and the "highly visible" trash receptacles when the art fair is not in operation.

Wholesale prices up, but hike slows down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices increased three-tenths of a per cent in May, down sharply from the April increase, largely because of a slowdown in price rises for farm products, the government said today.

The small increase in wholesale prices for May is likely to dampen fears — at least for a while — that inflation will get much worse. Trends in wholesale prices usually show up in retail prices charged to consumers.

The fears of a new outburst of inflation were expressed by both government and private economists after an eight-tenths of a per cent rise in wholesale prices in April, the biggest jump in six months. The increase was attributed mostly to a 4.2 per cent rise in the prices of farm products.

But the Labor Department said today that increases in farm product prices slowed to a gain of six-tenths of a per cent in May. Price trends also slowed for industrial commodities, up only one-tenth of a per cent, and for processed foods and feeds, up 1.3 per cent.

The department said the Wholesale Price Index for May stood at 181.8, compared to a 1967 base figure of 100. It said May wholesale prices were 5 per cent higher overall than wholesale prices one year earlier.

Helping to improve the outlook in farm prices was a drop in the price of beef and veal, which had increased sharply in April. Prices of pork, poultry, fish and dairy products increased, but less than during the month before, the Labor Department said.

However, prices of coffee and eggs rose sharply for the second straight month, the department said.

The small gain in industrial commodity prices was certain to be particularly heartening to economists, since price changes in the industrial area are considered to be more indicative of over-all inflation trends than changes in food prices.

Industrial prices had increased three-tenths of a per cent in April.

The Labor Department said prices for textiles and chemicals dropped in May, reversing an April increase. Lumber and wood products fell 1.2 per cent, the second consecutive monthly decline after nine straight months of increase.

Prices of hides and skins rose 3.4 per cent in May, while prices or rubber, plastics, metals and mineral products either were unchanged or rose only slightly after increasing substantially in April.

However, metals manufacturers, including steel producers, have announced some price increases that are certain to start showing up in wholesale prices in the coming months. These increases were not reflected in the May report.

There was no increase in May prices for crude materials, following a 2.6 per cent rise in April. A drop in prices for iron and steel scrap offset increases in nonferrous scrap, crude petroleum and natural gas as well as the rises in hides and skins.

Prices of finished goods rose two-tenths of a per cent, down considerably from the April increase of 1.1 per cent.

Prices of fuels and related products rose two-tenths of a per cent, following declines in the first four months of the year.

Divorce cost him

NEWTON, N.J. (AP) — Carl H. "Doc" Severinsen, the flashy band director on NBC's Tonight Show, has been granted a divorce in return for his promise to give his ex-wife $75,000 a year alimony, a rural horse ranch, a Cadillac and a Bentley.

The divorce agreement allows Severinsen to renegotiate the settlement if his income drops below $300,000 a year.

Evonne Severinsen, who married the band director and trumpet player in 1964, alleged that he abandoned her in 1973 when the Tonight Show moved from New York to California. She remained on the Harmony Ranch with five children, all from previous marriages.

"Having raised all his children he apparently determined to put me out to pasture," Mrs. Severinsen said in an affidavit. She had also alleged Severinsen was earning $500,000 a year and living in North Hollywood, Calif., with another woman.

Fans call about Mineo

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Devoted fans still call the sheriff's department almost daily about the 3½-month-old murder of actor Sal Mineo.

"The calls are mostly from women — probably 95 per cent of them," said a sheriff's department spokesman. "But we have to tell them all the same thing: that we're still following leads and have no suspects."

Mineo, 37, was knifed to death last Feb. 12 outside his West Hollywood apartment by an assailant who still remains unknown.

Elliot Mintz, a radio personality who says he was Mineo's best friend for 13 years, said he has been pursuing his own "course of action" to unearth the slayer. He said he had consulted several psychics.

"I sought them out because Sal was a believer in that kind of phenomena, as I am," he said. So far, he said, the psychics have not provided any leads to the killer.

Picasso's artistic legacy

GRASSE, France (AP) — Pablo Picasso's artistic legacy has been valued at $255.3 million, with his real estate, bank accounts and other assets expected to yield another $750 million.

The figure became public Thursday at a court hearing on a petition by the artist's 24-year-old granddaughter Marina to replace the executor of his estate. She claims the way the executor divided it between the six heirs was "altogether inapplicable and unacceptable."

The six heirs have been on strained terms since long before Picasso died in April 1973. The artist left no will and under French law his inheritance must be shared in fixed proportions among his legitimate and illegitimate offspring.

MILK BATH

Two policemen and a demonstrator are covered with milk after being hit in the line of fire Thursday at a dairy farmer's demonstration on Parliament Hill in Ottawa, Canada. Some of the 5,000 demonstrating Quebec dairy farmers hurled containers of milk at police and politicians in their protest against milk prices in Canada.

Political fund jail term is set aside

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Gov. Tim M. Babcock of Montana had his four-month jail term set aside today and was fined $1,000 for illegally concealing the origin of $54,000 in political contributions to the 1972 re-election campaign of former President Richard M. Nixon.

"It would be a terrible miscarriage of justice" for Babcock to go to jail, said U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. He added that one reason for his decision was that multimillionaire Armand Hammer, who gave the money was given a year's probation.

Hammer, 77-year-old chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp., also was fined $3,000. The wealthy patron of the arts has been hospitalized with heart disease. A federal judge in Los Angeles said he spared Hammer a prison term because of his age and poor health.

Babcock 56, pleaded guilty on Dec. 10, 1974 of masking Hammer's identity in the contribution. Babcock, who served as governor of Montana from 1962 to 1968, was a vice president in Occidental's office here when the contribution was made.

He was first sentenced on Jan. 31, 1975, to a maximum one-year in jail and fined $1,000. Hart said at the time he wanted the sentence to "serve as a deterrent to others not to ignore the law."

Justice dept. may hit Hays with suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is considering filing a civil suit against Rep. Wayne Hays in an effort to recover public money paid to Elizabeth Ray, who claims she was on the government payroll to serve as the Ohio Democrat's mistress, an informed source says.

The source said Thursday the Justice Department's civil division is weighing the possibility of filing the suit, which would be handled independently of the department's criminal investigation of Hays.

Meanwhile, another source revealed that Miss Ray is claiming to have had relationships with congressmen besides Hays. This source, asked about a published report that Miss Ray claimed bedroom encounters with 15 members of Congress, said:

"That's the correct order of magnitude. By that, I mean it's less than the capacity of a football stadium and greater than zero."

Hays bowed to pressure of his colleagues Thursday and announced he would step down from one of the two leadership posts he holds until the completion of investigations into his relationship with Miss Ray.

Justice Department attorneys examining a possibile civil suit against Hays were said to be eyeing the federal False Claims Act as a possible vehicle for the suit. The source said it is possible the lawyers could decide to file such a suit against Miss Ray as well.

In fact, the source said, any Hays employe who authorized an illegal arrangement involving Miss Ray could be subject to a civil suit.

The False Claims Act allows the government to collect double the amount of any money the government lost, plus $2,000 in penalties.

The source said it is unlikeiy a decision will be made on a civil suit until after a decision is made on any criminal charges.

Woman faces arraignment in fight with Pomona police

A Pomona woman is scheduled for arraignment June 16 in Pomona Municipal Court as the result of her arrest in a fracas with police Wednesday night.

The woman, Patricia Robinson, 24, was arrested outside her home at 438 Silverdale Ave. by police who charged that she injured two policemen in a sudden, unexplained attack. The officers, Sgt. William Julian and Officer James Walborn, were treated afterward for minor injuries at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Five officers were sent to the Silverdale Avenue address at 8 p.m. after a caller reported that there was a family dispute there and that a man involved was armed with a pistol.

They said that when they arrived, no one answered the door, but a few minutes later a relative of Mrs. Robinson's arrived. They said they were questioning him when Mrs. Robinson drove up, ran at them from her car and attacked Walborn. In the fracas when ensued she was subdued and taken screaming, kicking and spitting to the Police Department where she was booked on suspicion of felonious assault on a police officer and battery, officers reported.

Mrs. Robinson, identified as a psychiatric technician at Pacific State Hospital, was released later on $1,000 bail. The origin of the disturbance call was not determined.

Shot fired at man

A 19-year-old ONTARIO man complained to police that he was standing in front of his home Wednesday night when a car containing three men drove by and fired a shot at him.

Robert Daniel Wilkenson of 1441 S. Cucamonga St. told officers that one of the passengers in the vehicle pointed a .22 caliber rifle out of the car window and fired one round. He said the bullet missed and the car sped off.

He described the vehicle as a light blue firebird with a black stripe on the hood and trunk with a Mexican insignia on the back window. He described the three men in the vehicle as Latins.

Held in pistol whipping

A 22-year-old POMONA man was arrested Thursday at his home in connection with the pistol-whipping of a woman in ONTARIO at 1655 Harvard St., Apt. F, according to police.

Leo McDuff of 1125 Verde St., was arrested by Pomona and Ontario police shortly after Martha Hall, 19, of the Ontario address told officers she was struck in the face with a pistol wrapped in a rag.

The woman told officers that McDuff was invited into her apartment where she was watching television with her boyfriend. She said McDuff became angry and began beating her in the face with a pistol wrapped in a cloth. Several other persons in the apartment complex intervened and the suspect left, police said.

McDuff was booked in the West End Jail for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon. The woman suffered a severe nose bleed as a result of the beating, but did not require hospitalization, police said.

Motorist booked

A 24-year-old ETIWANDA man being booked in the West End Jail on a drunk driving charge Thursday night was treated for a cut lip at Montclair Doctors Hospital after allegedly shoving a sheriff's deputy in the jail.

Gerald Douglas Lott, 24, of 13060 Vine St., Etiwanda, originally arrested by Ontario police for investigation of drunk driving and being in possession of amphetimines, was additionally charged with assaulting a police officer as a result of the incident.

Deputy Lester Breeden said he had just fingerprinted Lott in the jail and turned his back to him when he was shoved. Breeden said he whirled and hit Lott in the face. Lott required four stitches to close a cut on his lip.

See gains in British pound

LONDON (AP) — Britain's ailing pound, which has been dropping to record lows almost daily, recovered slightly in early trading today and dealers predicted further gains from its Thursday close at $1.7092.

Soon after trading opened the pound rose to $1.7167.

"Things are looking better this morning and I would expect it to recover a bit more by the end of the day," said one dealer.

One reason for the slight rise appeared to be the return from vacation Thursday of Prime Minister James Callaghan and Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey.

Move on to stop TV debate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. John Tunney and his Democratic primary opponent Tom Hayden are mounting strong attacks against each other as a third candidate for the U.S. Senate seat goes to court to prevent a debate between the two.

Tunney and Hayden lashed out at each other Thursday as if Saturday's scheduled television debate had already begun.

Saturday evening's debate is still on, to be carried live over KNBC here. As it appears now, the confrontation will not be aired in other parts of the state because of the Federal Communications Commission's equaltime law.

Les W. Craven, an Azusa man also seeking the seat, filed a suit in Federal Court Thursday seeking to stop airing of the debate.

Meanwhile, Tunney issued statements accusing Hayden of contradicting his own platforms on drugs and fiscal issues and of violating the Federal Election Campaign Act by borrowing "massive" amounts of money from his actress wife Jane Fonda.

"This week," Tunney said, "Hayden denied the proposal in his campaign manifesto to decriminalize the use of all drugs. Hayden claims he is a fiscal conservative, yet the cost of just three of his spending programs would be $135 million."

Nun indicted in death of infant she gave birth to in convent

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A Roman Catholic nun has been indicted for first-degree manslaughter in the death of an infant physicians said was born to her in a convent room.

Carol Murphy, known as Sister Maureen, was indicted Thursday by a Monroe County grand jury.

The panel declined to accuse her of second-degree murder, as police had done after her arrest in April, saying the charge was not warranted because she acted under the influence of extreme emotional disturbance.

Sister Maureen, a 35-year-old elementary school principal in suburban Pittsford, was found by other nuns April 27 unconscious and bleeding in her room at Our Lady of Lourdes convent in neighboring Brighton.

Physicians at a Rochester hospital said she had given birth.

Police said the baby was found in a waste basket, with women's clothing stuffed in his throat and a nightgown wrapped around his neck.

Sister Maureen, wearing a white dress and sunglasses, pleaded innocent at arraignment in county court. She was allowed to remain free in $500 bail which had been posted earlier.

She declined to talk with reporters after the arraignment, but her lawyer, Anthony R. Palermo, denied there was any intent to kill.

Palermo said in a statement that Sister Maureen suffered a massive and severe loss of blood before the delivery, "resulting in a loss of consciousness and awareness."

"This," he said, "will be established by medical and psychological proof, which confirms that Sister Maureen never possessed any intent to harm or injure the infant."

Lottery shifts L.A. teachers for racial balance

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some school districrs are using buses to help achieve racial balance. Los Angeles school officials have found some new tools: cardboard squares, circles and ping-pong balls.

That was how the city's Board of Education determined which teachers would be the first to be transferred to other schools to meet civil rights regulations.

The unusual implements were used in a lottery Thursday to show the district's intention to meet the federal regulations.

The result: teachers born in April, May, June and November will be the first to be transferred in the proposed compliance action, in which district officials said as many as 400 employes may be shifted.

Besides the four birthday months drawn in the lottery for the coming school year, additional months selected for the 1977-78 school year were January, August, February and September. Months for the 1978-79 school year were July, October, December and March.

Seven teachers selected the months by taking numbered ping pong balls from a bag. The numbers corresponded to numbers on cardboard squares placed next to cardboard circles placed face down on a table.

As the balls were selected, the circle next to the corresponding numbered square were turned over to reveal a month.

Each set of four months is estimated to represent about 7,000 of the district's 25,000 contracted teachers.

The lottery was adopted by the board last May 3 as a means of complying with the civil rights regulations calling for each school to have the same ethnic makeup in its faculty as the district as a whole.

The United Teachers of Los Angeles had obtained a temporary restraining order in Superior Court to block the teacher transfer, required by the U.S. Office of Civil Rights.

The case has since been transferred to U.S. District Court and the restraining order modified to allow the district to proceed with its compliance plans without giving definite instructions to teachers.

Dr. Robert E. Searle, a district administrative consultant, said officials wanted to hold the lottery now so teachers who may be transferred could be notified before the end of the school year.

Searle said 1,500 to 1,800 teachers have volunteered to transfer rather than wait for the draft. He said the district hopes that the required ethnic proportions in each school can be accomplished through the volunteers, but said he doubted it could be done without some mandatory transfers.

Bicyclists, pedestrians banned

SACRAMENTO (AP) — There will be no more permits for hikers or cyclists to use California freeways in the commemoration of any historical events, says the state director of transportation.

In a letter to the legislature Thursday, Adriana Gianturco said the policy has been reconsidered since the issuance of permission to two persons who wanted to run on foot across the state in celebration of the U.S. Bicentennial.

While there were no mishaps in that case, "our experience has shown that allowing nonmotorized traffic such as pedestrians and bicyclists close to freeway traffic introduces serious safety problems," Ms. Gianturco said.

She added that last year, 60 fatalities involved pedestrians on freeways.

Prop. 15 opponents use media blitz to surge ahead in poll

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Opponents of the nuclear power initiative on Tuesday's California ballot have used a media blitz to surge ahead in the latest California Poll, a spokeman for the initiative says.

The latest poll by Mervin Field shows 54 per cent say they probably will vote against the initiative, 27 per cent for it and 19 per cent undecided.

It was taken May 31-June 2, and shows a marked change from the May 6-8 survey, which had 41 per cent no, 30 per cent yes and 29 per cent undecided.

"We find it absolutely incredible — beyond any credibility," Larry Levine, spokesman for the "Yes on 15" Committee said Thursday night.

"What we're detecting (from precinct walkers) out in the field is a tossup," he added.

Levine said the opponents have spent more than $2 million fighting the initiative, buying up radio and television time for the past six to seven weeks.

He said the proponents will use much of their money — about $200,000 — to buy a "comfortable" amount of radio and TV time in the last 10 days before the election.

Levine said he was puzzled by the decline of 3 per cent in the yes responses in the poll because Field had described the 30 per cent as a more firm response than the opposition in the May 6-8 survey.

Former Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown, a leader of the "No on 15" Committee, said the latest poll means "people are solidifying against the measure."

Asked to comment on Levine's charge of a media blitz, Brown said the spending is necessary because "they do not have a just cause. The initiative is too radical and too stringent."

The initiative would require:

—Unlimited insurance liability of nuclear plant operators if there is an accident, or power output would be restricted.

—Approval by two-thirds vote of the Senate and Assembly of nuclear plant safety systems, or no new plants could be built and old ones would be phased out.

The poll was based on telephone interviews with 1,008 persons from the 18 most populous counties who said they plan to vote in the election Tuesday.

Poll puts Hayakawa ahead of GOP foes

SAN FRANCISCO — (BW) — S. I. (Sam) Hayakawa leads all Republican candidates for the Republican U.S. Senate nomination, results of a statewide voter opinion survey showed.

Here is how Republican voters reported their preferences and leanings for the four major contenders:

S. I. Hayakawa	30 per cent
Robert Finch	26 per cent
Alphonzo Bell	22 per cent
John Harmer	9 per cent
Undecided	14 per cent

The poll was based on 300 telephone interviews conducted May 27, May 28 and June 1 by Decision Making Information (DMI), one of nation's foremost opinion research organizations, in behalf of the Hayakawa campaign.

Republicans who classified themselves as having the greatest interest in politics reported these preferences:

Hayakawa	32 per cent
Bell	27 per cent
Finch	25 per cent
Harmer	10 per cent
Undecided	5 per cent

69.5% vote seen

SACRAMENTO (AP) — About 69.5 per cent of California's more than 8 million voters will go to the polls in next Tuesday's presidential primary election, Secretary of State March Fong Eu says.

"If my prediction holds true," she said Thursday, "this will be an excellent turnout for a California primary election."

She said both the Democratic and Republican preidential contests and the controversy over Prop. 15, the nuclear power plant initiative, have contributed to high voter interest.

The record California turnout for a presidential primary election was 72.2 per cent of eligible voters in 1968. The turnout was 70.9 per cent in 1972.

Many of the local officials judge election interest from the number of absentee voter applications received.

Efficiency standards considered

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Energy Commission staff is considering strict mandatory efficiency standards for refrieators, freezers and air conditioners sold in California.

3-year-old preparing for a career in circus

Born into aerial family

NEW YORK (AP) — Some people have to run away to join the circus but 3-year-old Armandito Gaona was born into one. He is a member of the Flying Gaona family of Mexico who perform with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

The Gaonas have been led to the heights of the circus world by Armandito's grandfather, Victor, who has been an aerialist most of his life. As tradition demands, Armandito is following in his father's and his grandfather's footsteps.

When the troupe rehearses between performances, Armandito sits below watching his father, uncles and aunts. Afterwards he returns to his parents' trailer home and practices what he has seen, with a little help from his father. Often during a rehearsal his father will carry Armandito monkey-like up the tall narrow ladder to the trapeze, a height that would make most people shudder.

But Armandito practices taking bows atop the small platform from which the aerialists swing and laughs when his dad hangs by his knees and swings him high above the circus ring floor.

Armando Gaona, Armandito's father, learned his art in the same way. He was kept away from the wire and trapeze by his father, Victor, until he had learned to perform tricks on the ground. Then he was allowed to fly.

Armandito's mother, Lila, who is not a trapezist and doesn't perform in the circus, says she becomes a little anxious when his father takes him up. But she says as long as Armandito is with his father she knows her son is safe. And she, as do all the members of the family-troupe, encourages the little boy.

Armandito's favorite acts are the motorcycle stunt on the wire and the flying trapeze act. He practices these and other stunts on his tricycle on the circus grounds and his current task is learning to stand on his head atop the seat of his tricycle.

Estrogen, cancer linked

BOSTON (AP) — The drug estrogen, which emerged in the 1960s as a common cure for the miseries of menopause, probably is responsible for a dramatic increase in uterine cancer among middle-age women, say two research studies published today.

The studies show uterine cancer increased markedly in the 1970s and is closely linked with women who took estrogen during menopause.

The reports were published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

One of the studies, a statistical report, showed uterine cancer increased at least 40 per cent and as much as 150 per cent among middle-age women between 1969 and 1973. The rate of increase varied among sections of the country.

The researchers said the findings "give evidence for a rapid increase of a magnitude that has rarely been paralleled in the history of cancer reporting in this country."

Dr. Noel S. Weiss, who directed the statistical study at the University of Washington, said the use of estrogen has increased rapidly to treat the hot flashes, depression and irritability of menopause. Across the United States, the dollar value of the drug prescribed in 1973 was almost four times more than 10 years earlier, he said.

"The important point is that it makes it unlikely that the assertion can be made that the disease is due to some characteristic of the women rather than the medicine they are taking," he said in an interview.

The other study was directed by Dr. Thomas M. Mack of the University of Southern California. It concluded that there is "a high level of statistical significance" to the theory that estrogen causes uterine cancer.

The diesease appeared from four to eight years after the women stopped using the drug, Mack said. Generally, the greatest risk of getting cancer was among those who took the largest doses over the longest periods, he said.

"Prudence dictates that we tentatively assume the association to be casual and act on that basis," Mack wrote. "However, estrogen use should not be compared to an optional threat like smoking, but to the use of valuable but potentially dangerous tools like insulin and digitalis."

Other studies published in recent months conclude that the chance of getting uterine cancer is five to seven times greater among women who take estrogen during menopause.

Some doctors have suggested that women who take estrogen during menopause are less apt to suffer heart attacks. However, another study in the journal concluded that there is no relation between use of the drug and the risk of nonfatal heart attack.

Nixon 'love letters' revealed

NEW YORK (AP) — An unauthenticated set of four love letters supposedly written by Richard M. Nixon to an unnamed woman during the final days of his presidency in 1974 is in the hands of a literary agent here.

Scott Meredith said four handwriting experts had verified that the manuscript letters written on legal pads were in Nixon's hand but he added that he was "far from positive these are authentic."

Meredith would not say how the letters got to the unidentified man who gave them to him.

He said the woman to whom the letters were addressed is living in Europe. Meredith said copies of the letters had been shown to her but she refused to say anything.

Meredith refused to show reporters the originals of the letters but displayed copies in which most of the passages had been blacked out, leaving only fragments.

Meredith, who is also the agent for Judith Campbell Exner's book on her relationship with President John F. Kennedy, said efforts to authenticate the letters were continuing.

A reporter who called the Nixon compound at San Clemente, Calif., to ask for comment on the letters was told, "I'm sorry I can't help you with that."

Lloyd urges Hays probe...Richardson gun bill dies

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., has written to the House Ethics Committee calling for a full investigation into charges that Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, kept a mistress on the government payroll.

"My request for an investigation is in no way a judgment on the actions of Mr. Hays," he said. "In a speech on the floor of Congress, Mr. Hays himself admitted to having a relationship with Elizabeth Ray, but we need to know if she was hired only to be his mistress or if she in fact did perform normal office work."

Lloyd said it is imperative that Congress "clean its own house" before public opinion of Congress sinks below its current low level.

He also demanded that Hays relinquish his committee chairmanships until the House Ethics Committee conducts a thorough investigation into the charges against him.

State SEN. H. L. RICHARDSON'S proposed constitutional amendment that would guarantee law-abiding California residents the right to keep and own firearms failed in the state Senate by a 17-9 vote, with 10 abstentions. Twenty-seven votes were needed for passage.

The amendment would have given the public state constitutional protection and prevented the state legislature from enacting gun control laws more stringent than already is on the books, the 19th District Republican said.

DON DONNELLY, Republican candidate in the 65th Assembly District, expressed his opposition to Proposition 15 at a recent meeting of the 65th Assembly District Republican Central Committee in Pomona.

He said this would provide a unilateral halt in nuclear power plant construction and thus the loss of hundreds of construction projects and thousands of construction jobs in California.

"Second, alternative sources of energy are still in the research phase and probably will not become of commercial importance for another 10 to 20 years. This mans that fossil fuel usage will increase, with higher prices and increased pollution.

"Third, Proposition 15 is purely a political move on the part of the Democrat-controlled legislature. Three similar bills, all introduced by the Democrats, would also halt nuclear power plant construction in our state," said Donnelly.

CLYDE R. STEPHENS, Republican candidate in the 65th Assembly District, criticized the cost of education at a reception sponsored by the Pomona Valley Republican Club at Cal Poly Pomona.

"Education is a great concern to all of us. It is taking a greater bite out of our tax dollar and we are less satisfied with its return," he said.

"Cost of education is rising faster than the rate of inflation and in many areas enrollment is dropping."

Regarding dangerous gangs and the problems of narcotics in the schools, Stephens said he sees a "light at the end of the tunnel" because of the fundamental school concept that has been tried in Pasadena and other places.

"We must all work together to promote this fundamental school concept as a part of our public education. The fundamental school concept is where basic learning is stressed, patriotism is emphasized plus respect for authority and the rights of others is taught."

GEORGE AAMES, Democratic candidate in the 64th Assembly District, said the present public welfare system is a "cancer that must be removed" before it destroys the state's economy and the American way of life.

He said that welfare has become a tragic way of life for many Americans and that it threatens to envelope an alarming number of children of future generations.

Aames has proposed a program where welfare recipients would participate in local work experience programs involving community and regional improvement projects.

"It is only fair that if a person receives something from the government that he should also give something in return. Anyone who draws a government welfare check, with a few obvious exceptions, should work for that money," he said.

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL LANCASTER, R-62nd Dist., has endorsed Proposition 13 which would allow senior citizens with low and moderate incomes to postpone payment of their property taxes.

If approved by voters next Tuesday, the proposition would allow the legislature to set up a system where the state would advance local governments the tax funds they would lose, with local governments paying back the state when they receive the postponed tax payments.

The tax deferral proposal is a way to allow senior citizens who cannot afford property taxes to remain in their homes, said Lancaster.

Local Democrats have been appointed as campaign coordinators for the FRANK CHURCH FOR PRESIDENT campaign, said Lou Gentile, valley chairman.

Those appointed include: Alta Loma, Cucamonga, Robert J. Latham; Claremont, Fred Warner Neal and Charles Tryon; Pomona, Peggy Hennon and Walter Howell; Ontario, Esther Mandel and Oscar Wiltsey; and Upland, Robert Carlton.

Los Angeles County FIRE FIGHTERS LOCAL 1014, AFL-CIO, has endorsed Propositions R & T on the June 8 ballot.

Al Whitehead, local president, commended Los Angeles County Supervisor Baxter Ward for developing a comprehensive, cost effective rapid transit plan to serve the county's transportation needs for generations.

"The Sunset Coast Line is a 232-mile fixed rail rapid transit plan that will take people where they want to go in fast, modern trains.

"Through the use of freeways and flood control channels, Propositions R and T avoid the costly and time consuming process of condemnation of private property that previous rapid transit proposals required," he said.

Local 1014 represents fire fighters in 39 cities within Los Angeles County.

J. Edward Martin, co-chairman of the COMMITTEE AGAINST RAPID TAXES (CART), said the massive economic burden of financing Propositions R and T would have to be borne by those least able to pay the costs associated with the proposed $5.8 billion Sunset Coast Line.

The one per cent increase in the sales tax represents a 17 per cent increase in taxes and the poor and elderly will be hurt financially by such an erosion of their already limited purchasing power, he added.

"The more affluent members of society have savings and other sources to rely upon not available to the less well-to-do and thus will not be measurably affected."

1 in 10 Mass. inmates a Vietnam war veteran

BOSTON (AP) — One of every 10 inmates in state penal institutions is a Vietnam war-era veteran, a study by the Massachusetts Corrections Department shows.

On the average, the veteran is older, better educated and has a briefer criminal record than other inmates, reports showed.

Next week, a member of the state Parole Board will propose a plan to give inmate veterans special consideration for early release if they show progress toward rehabilitation.

"Not only do these men deserve a break," said Stephen N. Blesofsky, one of the seven Parole Board members, "They're a good risk. They have a history in the service and before."

Last September, the Corrections Department determined that 222 of the 2,018 male prisoners then in custody, or 11 per cent, were Vietnam-era veterans, who served 181 days or more on active duty between Aug. 5, 1964, and May 7, 1975.

5 graduating at Collegiate

Five seniors will be graduated at Claremont Collegiate School's 84th commencement Sunday at 5 p.m. on campus at 3105 N. Padua Ave.

They were Rosellen Anderson of Claremont, Paula Hope D'Oyen of Pomona, Wendy Elizabeth Ellson of San Gabriel, Annette Elisabeth Meyers of Claremont and Gary Lee Shanks of Ontario.

A father and his graduating daughter will participate. Miss Meyers will deliver a message from the senior class. Bert Meyers, an award-winning poet and a Pitzer College faculty member, will read original poetry.

Miss Anderson will give the invocation.

Starts Friday, June 4.

Swing vote comes from rock 'n' roll fan

By L.T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

The Ontario City Council today denied by a 3-2 vote an application to conduct a rock festival at the Ontario Motor Speedway after the promoter declined to hold two programs to reduce the size of the crowd.

The council met in a special session at 6 a.m. after the four members attending a public hearing on the proposal Wednesday night became deadlocked 2-2 on the measure.

Councilman Robert Abel, absent from Wednesday's meeting because of illness, joined council members Faye Dastrup and Beecher Medlin in opposing the concert. Those favoring it were Mayor Paul Treadway and Councilman Homer Briggs.

Abel reported he had no objections to a rock concert but was opposed to large crowds where some patrons who paid for admission were located a quarter-mile from the stage and performers.

"Concerning the argument about rock 'n' roll music, I am a rock 'n' person. I have never been arrested and I go to church on Sundays when not working. I hate to condemn a whole segment of people based on the music I like," he added.

But he objected to people paying the price of admission because of the size of the crowd being located a quarter-mile from the stage. Abel said he had no objection to concern if it could be limited to 50,000 to 60,000 persons.

In response, Ray Smartis, the speedway's manager, said that many people will come to these concerts even though they know they can't see the stage.

"They want to hear the music and be there," he added. Smartis reported the stage is 200 by 200 feet and elevated 16 feet. "They can make out the stars."

Mayor Treadway suggested Smartis telephone Sanford Feldman, the promoter, regarding a suggestion the proposed concert be held on two days rather than one to limit the crowd size.

Following a telephone call, Smartis reported several areas of concern regarding the two days of concert. "He reported that if we did limit it to 75,000 persons, what would prevent 150,000 from showing up? Then a lot of people would want to stay for the second show and would leave their cars in the parking lot," said Smartis.

Also Feldman was concerned over the concert being filmed for television. The cost for keeping television crews would be "astronomical," he added.

Smartis said the estimated expense for a one day concert would be about $1 million. This would require another $500,000 for the second day program, he added.

Following the vote for denial, some discussion developed over dividing areas within the speedway for different prices of tickets.

But Smartis suggested many people might buy the high priced tickets and still be a long distance from the stage.

Reagan rally canceled

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan has canceled his rally set for Saturday at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut.

Campaign workers said Reagan will spend Saturday and Sunday in Ohio. He will return to Los Angeles Sunday night and spend Monday in Oakland, Van Nuys and Topanga.

Actor Efrem Zimbalist Jr. had been scheduled to introduce Reagan at the Mt. San Antonio College program.

Ralph's lonely life: Dad gone, Mom is out often

It's a terrible feeling to know that your father abandoned you and your mother never wanted you.

For a boy growing up in an environment in which his mother constantly reminds him that if it hadn't been for him she would be free to travel and have no responsibilities, life can be degrading.

Ten-year-old Ralph lives in this type of environment. When Ralph was 7 his father left the family and his mother went to work. Ralph, an only child, was left by himself to do whatever he pleased, as long as he didn't dirty the house and ate only the food that was designated to him.

After work is over, Ralph's mother usually comes home, changes clothes and leaves with her present boyfriend. The only time she talks to Ralph is to criticize him or give him an order.

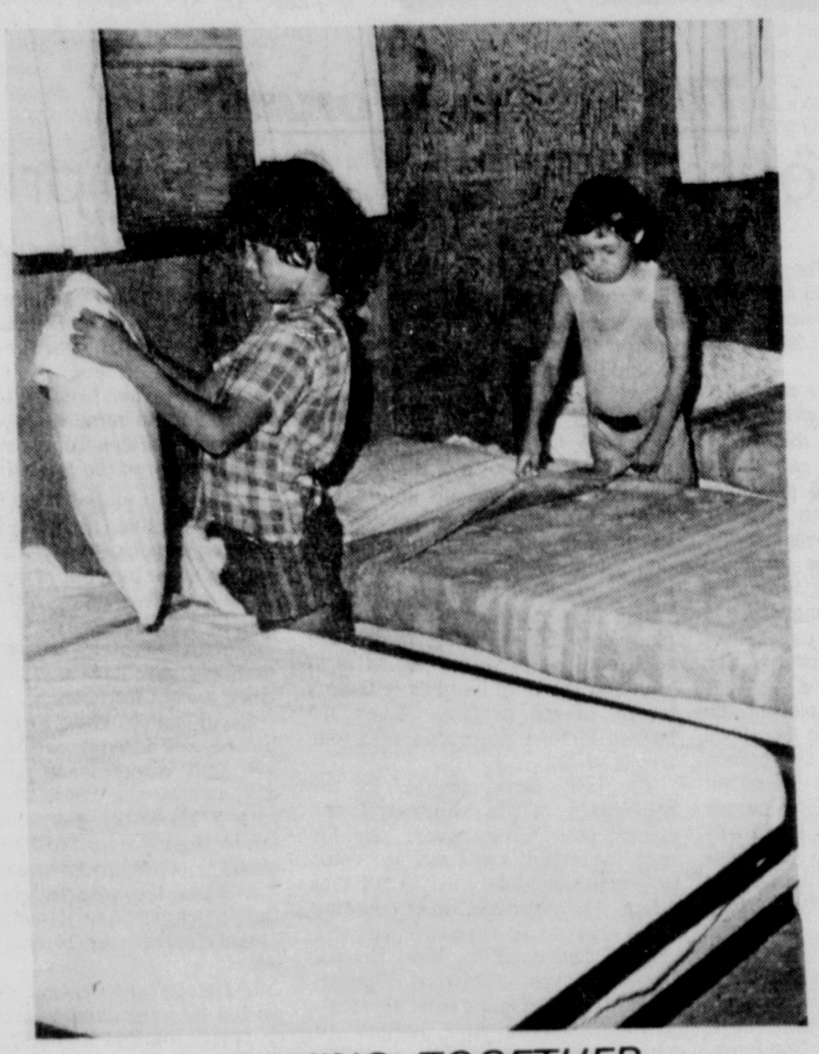

Counselors have been to Ralph's home and met and talked with his mother and her boyfriend, but the couple ignores them.

Despite this environment, Ralph is a gentle, though insecure, child. His counselors feel that he deserves a chance to be with children his own age and to have someone pay attention to him.

Your dollars can help Ralph and other children like him go to camp. Camp can restore their confidence in people and in themselves and provide character building activities for them by teaching them to work and play with other children.

Lowest in 7 years

MSAC staff gets 5% offer

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

A five per cent across-the-board pay raise, the lowest in seven years, has been offered to more than 1,000 employes at Mt. San Antonio College.

The offer came at the end of a special meeting Thursday night that lasted nearly nine hours. It is based on the condition that it will not be renegotiated under any circumstances until it expires next year.

The raise was approved by the college board, 3-1, with trustee Robert Hutchinson dissenting and Trustee Travis Manning absent.

Representatives of the Faculty Association and the college's classified employes, who had asked for nine per cent raises, appeared disappointed by the board's decision. They said they would take the offer back to their groups for consideration.

The board delayed action on raising the pay of its 29 administrators until June 24. The trustees told the administrators to revise their requests and come up with a new schedule based on a four per cent pay raise.

In all cases the board will pay the additional cost of hospital and health insurance, which will amount to about $120,000. The raises in salaries and insurance payments will amount to about $955,000.

The board indicated it was in no mood to hand out raises like the eight per cent last year and the nine per cent the year before.

Board President Richard Todd recalled that the district lost $1.5 million last year because the state refused to pay above five per cent of the college's growth in attendance.

He said there was a strong likelihood of another deficit year.

"We can't stand another year like that," he declared. "The handwriting is on the wall in California."

James Simpson, vice president in charge of business services, also blamed the college's financial plight on urban redevelopment programs within the district.

He said $92 million worth of assessed valuation has been frozen throughout the district, most in the wealthy City of Industry, and this cut down the college's taxing ability.

The pay raises, coupled with other expenses, are expected to wipe out another $1.3 million in college reserves. The district will almost surely have to raise its tax rate to offset some of that loss.

Whether the employes accept the offer of the board, a routine action in past years, was in doubt, since the teachers as well as the classified employes were setting up bargaining units which will speak for them as of July 1.

But a provision of the board offer was that if the employes accepted it, they would be unable to reopen the contract until June, 1977.

As part of the contract proposal, part time instructors teaching accredited courses would get $14.74 an hour. Full time instructors teaching summer school would be paid one per cent of their month salaries per hour.

Occidental receives U.S. pact

The Occidental Research Corp. in La Verne has been awarded a $3.7 million federal contract to operate a process for extracting liquid fuel from coal.

The award was announced by Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., who visited the plant at 1855 Carrion Road on May 15.

"Through innovative alternate energy processes such as this, the U.S. can get closer to energy independence," he added.

Lloyd said that as a member of the House Committee on Science and Technology, he knows the important part that alternate energy processes will play in the nation's future.

Study of Pomona launched

Members of the Pomona City Council, school board and Chamber of Commerce met today to organize committees to study economic development, housing and education in the city.

The three areas of inquiry, said Lynn Rountree, chamber president, were identified for study during a two-day meeting of city, school and chamber officials at Rancho California in April.

The economic committee will consider such items as job placement programs, industrial and commercial development and redevelopment.

Areas of consideration by the housing committee will probably include the upgrading of substandard housing, the availability of home financing, and possible ways to protect healthy neighborhoods from deterioration.

The education committee will consider a wide variety of issues including involvement of students and parents in positive roles, safety on school campuses, vocational education and future needs of the district.

The committees will begin holding meetings this summer.

Boys' Club moms plan rummage sale

The Pomona Boys' Club Mothers' Auxiliary, a newly formed organization, will hold a rummage and bake sale from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the club house, 1374 S. Garey Ave.

Mrs. Alberta Lynch, president of the auxiliary, said proceeds from the sale will help pay the upcoming summer program of the club.

Sub-station commander begins his new duties as an inspector

Capt. Edward Noon, commander of the West End sheriff's sub-station, Saturday will assume a new assignment as inspector of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Central Division Office.

Noon, commander of the West End sub-station since December 1970, was promoted by Sheriff Frank Bland.

Assigned as the new commander of the West End sub-station will be Capt. Keith Larson, transferring from the Glen Helen Rehabilitation Center.

Since assuming command of the West End sub-station, Noon has established the West End Sheriff's Search and Rescue Team and added five new deputies to his staff as a result of the rapid growth of the Alta Loma, Cucamonga, and Etiwanda area.

Noon in 1974 was one of a few lawmen across the United States selected to attend the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy at Quantico, Va. He graduated with high honors from the class and since has employed many of the law enforcement techniques he learned in the department.

Noon was an original supporter of We T.I.P., Inc., that has been called the best civilian organization of its kind in the United States for reducing drug trafficking in local communities.

He was instrumental in gaining approval of the county Board of Supervisors to build an underground tunnel to transport high risk prisoners from the jail to the West Valley Courts.

Construction on the new security tunnel is expected to begin soon.

Capt. Larson, 47, prior to being reassigned to the West End sub-station as commander was in charge of the rehabilitation center and the weapons training center at Glen Helen.

Larson lives in Rialto with his wife and has two sons, who are living at home.

Ontario youth hurt critically

A 10-year-old Ontario boy was critically injured Thursday evening when his bicycle was struck by a car at Cucamonga Avenue and Belmont Street in Ontario, police reported.

Gary Andrew Gunn, of 1151 E. Belmont St. suffered serious head and internal injuries as a result of the accident. He was admitted to Ontario Community Hospital in critical condition about 5 p.m.

Police said the boy rode his bicycle from a low hill on Cucamonga Avenue onto Belmont Street and was hit by a car driven by William Glenn Deffenderfer, 31, of 921 Richland Ave., Ontario.

Cyclist injured

An Ontario man was hurt Thursday when his motorcycle went out of control and slid on the San Bernardino Freeway in Pomona.

John Herrington, 50, 621 W. Fifth St., was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital with a mild concussion and facial lacerations.

Coin, stamp show presented by Elks

Pomona Elks Lodge 789 will present a coin and stamp show at the lodge, 1471 W. Holt Ave., from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Gerry Nelson, proprietor of Old School House Coins in Claremont, will be Bourse Chairman.

Dealers from all over Southern California will offer coins and stamps covering 200 years of American history for sale to the public. Mal Varner and Cy Phillips Jr., recent purchasers of the famous Crown Collection, will have portions of the quarter of a million dollar collection on display. Phillips will talk on "Coins of this wonderful land, America" at 4 p.m. each day.

A Bicentennial memorabilia exhibition will be on display. Lee Kuntz of Masterpiece Medallions will have a hydraulic press at the show, and visitors will have the opportunity to strike their own commemorative medallions as souvenirs.

Food and refreshments will be available. Tickets are 50 cents general, children and senior citizens free.

Car runs over Chino girl, 3

A Chino girl was seriously injured Thursday when run over by a truck in front of a small store near Chino.

Tammy Van Dyke, 3, 13760 San Antonio Ave., was admitted to the intensive care unit at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland where her condition is reported as fair.

The accident occurred at the southeast corner of Pine Avenue and the Chino Corona Road. Shawn Bradly Baird, 12573 Benson Ave., Chino, the driver was parked on a gravel parking lot and started to drive away from the store when the child was struck, said highway patrolmen.

The driver failed to observe the small child who was crossing in front of the truck, they added.

Congress won't cast first stone

Some people have gotten pretty excited over the allegations that Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio) kept a mistress on the public payroll. The Congressman's constituents, however, seem to be taking a more tolerant view of the matter, judging by comments in the press.

According to the apparent consensus thus far among Ohioans represented by Hays, the scandal may hurt his career some, but not enough to cost him re-election.

As the Democratic chairman of one Ohio county put it, "A man's personal life is his personal business. Let he (sic) who is without sin cast the first stone."

That stone will not be cast in Congress. "If this thing ever came up for a floor vote and everyone with a similar personal involvement was asked not to vote, you'd have two votes cast — and they'd both be suspect," one congressional aide was quoted as saying.

This is really the most revealing side to the whole story — not whether or not there was any truth to the tales the young lady on Rep. Hays' staff spilled to reporters, but the immediate assumption in Washington that there probably was. Thus reaction on Capitol Hill was more of surprise that a colleague should have been caught than outrage that he was doing anything to be caught at.

Such is the state of morality in the nation's capital, and such, quite probably, has it always been.

Actually, there is only one sin that is unforgivable in American politics. It was summed up by Richard M. Nixon when he said that the only person he would consider unfit to be president would be an atheist.

That goes for congressmen, too, in the minds of most voters. Even in this age of rampant unbelief, Americans still know right from wrong.

Face of American spirit

One of the more successful Bicentennial activities, at least in terms of grass-roots interest, has been the search for "Great American Faces," launched last year by the Kinney Shoe Corp. and adopted as an official project by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

Twelve outstanding faces, judged for qualities of "character, personality, strength, emotion, warmth and humanity," have been selected from more than 5,000 entries submitted by amateur photographers from all walks of life. The winners range in age from a five-month-old boy to a 90-year-old grandmother.

The shoe company says it undertook sponsorship of the photo quest to demonstrate America's "still vital spirit" and as a way of involving Americans in the Bicentennial rather than being merely spectators.

The "Great American Faces" will be on view at shopping centers around the country throughout the Bicentennial year, as well as at the National Visitors Center in Washington, D.C.

Down the tubes

The familiar tubes used in radio and television receivers are falling victim to the solid-state revolution. RCA has announced that it will close its receiving tube plant at Harrison, N.J., July 30, leaving only two other American companies in this end of the electronics business.

Reason is the steadily decreasing demand for tubes in the face of the shift to solid-state devices. Industry-wide sales of tubes have declined from 442 million in 1966 to about 80 million in 1975. This is less than RCA alone sold in the heyday of the receiving tube.

On a nostalgic note, Radio-Electronic magazine recalls that the now obsolete plant in New Jersey was originally built by Thomas A. Edison in 1882 to produce light bulbs. It was the "Edison effect" discovered in early light bulbs that led Lee De Forest and other pioneers to develop the vacuum tubes which made possible the miracle of radio, and later, television.

Thought

But be does of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves. For if any one is a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like a man who observes his natural face in a mirror; for he observes himself and goes away and at once forgets what he was like. — James 1:22-24.

"Plunge boldly into the thing of life! Each lives it, not to many is it known; and seize it where you will, it is interesting." — Johann Goethe, German dramatist.

Long hours, low pay, lots of pride

Dear Editor:

We are writing in defense of our fellow precinct officers in answer to a letter from Mrs. Jean Evans Brooks published May 28 in the public forum columns.

Evidently she has never worked as a precinct officer or she would know that we are not there for the money. The money paid is a set rate which averages out about $1.25 per hour. This is not even minimum wages.

On city elections it's less because the ballots and the votes are hand counted instead of going through a computer. This takes longer. To a bystander who doesn't understand the procedures of the board, this always seems very simple.

The rules and procedures of the precinct board come from the office of the registrar of voters. One person is never allowed to count the ballots or the votes on his own. Two people always count together so there will be no mistakes. We are conscientious in our job, and do this, not for the high wages, but because we feel this is a way of serving our community, state and country.

It's not entirely a thankless job. Most people appreciate the work we do. Our day starts at 6:30 a.m. until the polls close at 8 p.m. Not even then are we finished until all the ballots are counted, supplies restored to their proper boxes and envelopes and the ballots delivered to the check out center.

In city elections the ballots, also the votes must be counted. Each of these votes must be tallied in two books. We get an hour off for lunch, if we are lucky. No time off for dinner since no one is allowed to leave after 5 p.m.

We have worked on the election board for 20 years and enjoy doing it, but we do not like to be accused of cheating for the small wages we receive. Let me say in closing, anyone wishing to be a precinct officer need only to volunteer. It's long hours, low pay, little to eat, and lots of pride in the job we do.

Mrs. Kelsie N. Green
Mrs. Beatrice F. Verboys
Claremont

Dear Editor:

As one who observed the count of recall ballots at Sycamore School and the recount of them in Los Angeles, I am offended by the charges of "crookedness" brought by Mrs. Brooks in her letter which appeared May 28. Though I trust that her suspicion was cast out by your report of the recount which appeared on the first page the same day, I would like to share information with Mrs. Brooks and others who are ignorant of procedure for counting ballots.

Before the ballot box is opened all unused ballots are invalidated by tear or crossing out. Before beginning any tally, the ballots are unfolded and counted, grouping piles of 10 into stacks of 100. The number of ballots voted, plus those voided or spoiled, plus those unused must match the total number of voters signed in to vote and the total number of ballots issued to the precinct. Each 100 ballots is then regrouped into four stacks of 25.

The tally form supplied by the registar's office separated the county onto three pages: one for each incumbent's yes and no; votes for each candidate filed to fill that office. At Sycamore, after counting 25 ballots according to the method suggested by Mrs. Brooks ("yes, yes, yes — Stafford, Tipping, Hough"), it was found to be physically cumbersome and judged to enhance the possibility of error. Therefore the board decided to count each item separately. The two people tallying checked that their figures agreed after each set of 25 ballots. The careful reading and assessment (also checked by a member of the board) that each vote was validly marked did take until 3:15 am. Accuracy, not speed is the goal in vote counting. The board had been at work since before 7 a.m. serving the 908 citizens who voted there.

In Los Angeles, the boards were instructed to count each column of the ballot separately (granted this is more efficient). If the two people tallying disagreed at any time, that portion of the ballot was recounted for the entire precinct. One board of four spent the entire day of Wednesday recounting Precinct 10 — Sycamore. The greatest variation between the two counts was fourteen votes lost by one candidate.

Dear Editor:

Occasionally a published letter contains so many errors and false accusations that a rebuttal is mandatory. Such a letter was published in the Progress Bulletin on May 28, written by a Mrs. Brooks who accuses the poll workers at the Sycamore school of stupidity, laziness or fraud because they took 7 hours and 40 minutes to count 894 ballots. This insulting letter completely ignores the following facts;

1. The polls closed at 8 p.m., but all voters in line at that time are allowed to vote. Since Sycamore had a very large turn out of voters there were doubtless many voters still in line at 8 o'clock.

2. With 894 voters, the workers had probably not had anything to eat since early afternoon.

3. All ballots have to be counted before vote tallying can start.

4. Poll workers are paid by the day, not by the hour. The current rate is $24.00 per day which works out to slightly over $1.00 per hour or about ½ of minimum wage rate.

5. When the vote tallying starts, the workers are tired, having already spent over 14 hours on the job.

6. Delays in counting do occur, caused by irregularities such as improperly marked ballots, write-in votes and the constant checking which is done to ensure an accurate count.

If accusations are to be thrown at the Sycamore workers, the other polling places should be included also. I was the inspector at Danbury School and we needed 5 hours to close the polls and tally 651 votes (130 per hour) compared with a rate of 120 per hour at Sycamore. Mrs. Brooks is invited to attend the next vote counting (as a worker or poll watcher) and apply her remarkable speed counting ability to the process. However, I suggest that she first attend the classes which are held before each election so that she can learn the legally prescribed procedures which must be used in closing the polls and counting the votes.

The election results did not please me either, Mrs. Brooks, but I feel you owe an apology to all the public spirited, hard working poll workers who you insulted and a very special apology to those workers at the Sycamore School.

Peanut gallery view of Carter

WASHINGTON — Is Jimmy Carter, the trust-me candidate, a phony, as his detractors claim?

We sent our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, to Carter's hometown to seek the answer. With a knapsack on his back, Bernton called on Carter's neighbors in Plains, Ga., and stayed overnight on Carter's peanut farm, helping with a few chores. Bernton's grass-roots inquiry lasted nearly a week.

Plains is a quiet, sleepy town, which rises out of the red earth and quickly slumps back into it. Most activity takes place along Main Street, which bisects the town. A railroad track meanders through town, but the train no longer stops there for passengers.

Gentle people live there — a gracious white gentry and easy-going black laborers. The Carters, of course, belong to the gentry. But Bernton found that Jimmy Carter's white neighbors, within their delicately sculptured white frame houses, sometimes muttered against him.

There was the issue, for example, of public education. The board of education is run by white parents who send their own children to private academies. Most of the whites, therefore, are unwilling to raise taxes to improve the two public schools, which are attended predominantly by blacks.

Carter has annoyed his neighbors by reproving them over the rundown schoolhouse, by agitating for support of public education and, finally, by sending his own eight-year-old daughter, Amy, to the neglected public school.

Bernton also visited with Carter's black neighbors. He criss-crossed the sprouting corn, cotton and peanut fields, seeking them out in their rural homes. He stayed overnight with Leonard Wright who farms more than 200 acres of the Carter spread.

Wright is a kindly, cordial black man, with a wide, Jimmy Carter smile and a display of gold-flecked teeth. For 20 years, Wright has worked the Carter fields — gently rolling fields of green growth and red earth, bisected by a border of stately old shade trees.

Wright spoke proudly about his association with the leading Democratic presidential candidate. "Mr. Jimmy supplies the land, fertilizer and seed," Wright explained. "I provide my own equipment and the labor. Then we split, fifty-fifty. I made over $15,000 last year."

Wright has cleared enough to purchase seven tractors and to give his five children a good education. Carter always told him, said Wright, that education was one of the greatest gifts he could give his children. So he has sent most of them to college.

The Jimmy Carter whom Wright knows is a decent, tolerant, generous man who has never dined in the Wright home but who invited his farm manager to the inauguration in Atlanta when Carter was sworn in as governor of Georgia. "He's already invited me up to the White House if he gets elected President," added Wright, with a gold-flecked grin.

Nor has Carter ever reached such heights in politics that he has lost his interest in the lowly peanut. According to Wright, the presidential prospect drops by the farm as often as possible to check on the progress of his peanuts.

Not long ago, Carter turned down a lucrative offer from a neighboring farmer to buy up his federal peanut acreage allotment. One reason Mr. Jimmy refused the deal, Wright says, is that it would have taken the profit out of the farm and left Wright without a living.

But the Carter family hasn't always treated its land tenants so considerately. Bernton trudged several miles down a dusty, red clay road to visit another Carter farm. It is now rented to a few farmers in town. But the ghostly ruins of a sharecropper's shack remain as an ugly reminder of the exploitive sharecropping system that was once practiced here.

On an abandoned, battered, old kitchen table sat an empty coffee cup and a high-heeled shoe. The rusting skeletons of a couple of automobiles reposed in the tall grass, which had overgrown the yard.

Bernton made a search for the last family who had occupied the shack and found them living in improved circumstances. The former sharecropper, Felton Shelton, spoke softly about his years of toil for the Carters.

Just in jest

What would you do if you were certain the world would come to an end within a year? — That was the subject on which a group of grade school youngsters were recently told to write a short in-class composition.

As might be expected, the answers ranged all the way from "make sure I didn't forget to say my prayers" to "take a good hot bath so I would be clean when I got to Heaven." But for originality combined with practicality, the 4-star award for excellence must certainly go to this literary effort handed in by a young lad.

"I would take a course in speed reading," he wrote, "so that I could hurry up and read the Bible from cover to cover and know all the right answers when Saint Peter starts separating the sheep from the goats."

Impeachable conduct

By EARL G. WATERS

Under the banner of "reform" the voters in 1974 were lulled into approving an ill-conceived, hastily and horrendously drafted law titled the "Political Reform Act." No better example will be found in the soundness of the admonition that "Reform legislation should be viewed with great skepticism for invariably such proposals provide that the reformers shall be the regulators and enforcers."

That is the case of the Fair Political Practices Commission, subsequently termed a "political police force" by its major sponsor. Named to the commission were the principal authors of the act and some of its leading supporters. The law already has had a chilling effect on many responsible citizens who normally would make personal sacrifices to participate in government. Many have resigned and many more are declining to run because of the intolerable provisions of the law.

Equally disturbing has been the laborious efforts on the part of the commission to interpret the provisions of the very act they wrote and promoted. Their seeming inability to clearly define the rules have left the lawmakers and all others subject to the law in a quandary.

This only makes more frightening the awesome powers held by the commission which was formulated in a manner blithely ignoring the constitutional separations of power by endowing it with executive, legislative and judicial authority.

More scaring is the fact that, not only are the commissioners appointed without being subject to Senate confirmation, they cannot be removed through impeachment. But for that omission the Commission's chairman, Daniel Lowenstein, would most certainly now be facing proceedings.

What he did was inject himself into the ongoing legislative battle over the controversial Agricultural Labor Relations Board in a too obvious effort to intimidate Senator George N. Zenovich. Considered a key vote, the approach to Zenovich was a clear attempt to influence legislation.

Lowenstein's offense, were he a judge, unquestionably would have brought a prompt demand for impeachment. As the chief protector of lawmakers from undue influence his use of his position to pressure a Senator was doubly offensive. As an official who sits not only in judgment of the lawmakers and lobbyists conduct but acts as investigator and prosecutor as well, it was not only doubled but then tripled.

His letter itself is all that is necessary to indict. Written on official FPPC stationery and signed as chairman it was clear he wanted nothing left to the imagination. It is equally clear that it was intended to pressure Zenovich for he candidly wrote it as an "open" letter thus assuring maximum publicity. That his insertion into the fray was unwarranted is proved by his own statement that the letter was unsolicited. That there was never any discussion with Zenovich prior to the letter is testified by his explanation that the letter was prompted by "press accounts." That also testifies to the haphazard manner in which his office is conducted.

Lowenstein's thin attempt to unfrock himself in the letter by stating it to be personal and not "representing the Commission" is deceitful. If the opinion was worthless why offer it to Zenovich? If it didn't reflect the Commission why the official stationery and why signed as "chairman"?

It is conceivable the Legislature could make the FPPC members subject to impeachment in the future. It is also possible the Legislature, through its budgetary process, now has some power to restrain the FPPC by trimming its spending which has ballooned to $5 million in one year despite its assurances to the voters that it would only cost about $1 million a year. But ultimately the Legislature should demonstrate some courage and submit to the voters a satisfactory replacement for the existing abomination self-styled the Political Reform Act.

Student requests music information

I recently have earned the right to contribute an article every three or four weeks to our school newspaper.

I've grown to love all types of music and would like to write about music.

To do so I need information about music groups, singers, stars, songs, disc jockeys or what have you.

Where could I get data on these subjects?

I have no money to pay someone to issue it to me and I really am desperate. — D. H., Ontario.

Work rather than money is involved in the answer to your question.

Look in the Ontario Public Library for newspaper articles on musical groups and where they are going to appear.

For information about any specific group, you can address a letter to the publicity agent for that group at the entertainment spot where it will next perform.

While you are at the library, look in the Los Angeles phone book for addresses of motion picture and television studios and radio stations.

If you can connect a star with a studio or a disc jockey with a station, you have it made. We'll send you a list of studios to get you started.

You may be able to get some help from the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers (ASCAP) and you will certainly get some from the music departments and radio stations of local colleges.

Once you get started, you'll develop ideas of your own. Your biggest expenses will be for postage and shoe leather.

We understand that you will begin your writing during summer school. Stay cool.

I ordered a dress and pantsuit through a mail order advertisement. Normally I avoid mail order items but I really like the style of the clothes.

My order and check were made out to Wigmaker, Asbury Park, N. J., last November.

Late in December I wrote to the firm because I had neither heard nor received anything although my check had been processed.

I got a card from Dressmaker Fashion, also in Asbury Park, saying the items I ordered would be shipped Dec. 31.

On Jan. 10 I received an envelope with the "dresses" in it. I sent it back by return mail because it was more like a flimsy nightgown. I asked for a refund.

I wrote a couple of weeks later, this time asking for cancellation of the pantsuit order and a refund of the total amount I had sent.

The $10.98 for the dress came the day after I mailed the third letter. I still have not received the $38.89 for the pantsuit. Can you help me get it? — Mrs. Y. N., Chino.

We wrote to Contempo-Wigmaker in Oakhurst, N. J., because that's where your first check came from.

Writing to you, a customer service representative acknowledged receiving your letter and apologized for inconvenience caused you.

The representative of the firm said your order had been shipped last January and returned as undeliverable.

You were sent a refund of $36.98. That was $2 less than you thought was owed you but you said you would accept it.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Saturday, June 5, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Before you grumble about a job you resent doing today, consider its long-range aspects. It could prove to be very beneficial.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll be generally fortunate today except in finances. Leave the long shots to those who like to gamble and are used to losing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Though a member of your family could cause some unnecessary frustration today, be the first to forgive so the matter can be forgotten.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, keep everything out in the open. You'll only come to grief by trying to repress important, but embarrassing facts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An alternative today may turn out to be your most fortunate choice. It may not appear to be so at the time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's nothing wrong with being ambitious, but have fun at the same time. Don't pursue goals so doggedly you forget to live.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have a tendency today to create needless problems. Fortunately, you'll be able to get out of trouble as easily as you got into it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't enter any arrangements today where you hope to get more than you're willing to give. If you're generous the other party will reciprocate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An associate will try to take credit today for something you did. His tactics will be to no avail. You'll get due praise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't be rash or foolish, but if a calculated risk is called for today, take it. It may be well worth the effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you keep your nose to the grindstone today, the possibility of gain looks very promising. Opting for pleasure will diminish your chances.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Steer clear of domineering people today. Pal around with someone with whom you can feel and act yourself.

Your Birthday, June 5, 1976

Activity behind the scenes will be of great benefit to you this coming year. Someone influential is quietly pulling strings in your behalf.

Bed is becoming too small

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are in our 40s, married over 20 years. The problem I am writing about is the bed.

Before you jump to any conclusions, let me assure you that our sex life is terrific, but like most people in their 40s our sleep patterns have changed.

We used to sleep cuddled up together, but now he complains that I am "leaning" on him Our bed is the standard 57-inch type. Space was never a problem before, but now I'm conscious of the fact that he takes more than his 28½ inches. And he snores louder than he used to. Much louder.

If I get up in the night to go to the bathroom he is annoyed because "I woke him up." Last week I said, "Honey, I want twin beds." He was hurt, insulted and outraged. Why do men consider it a sexual rejection? I guess the only solution is to START married life in twin beds, but it's too late for that now. Any suggestions? — Morpheus Where Are You?

Dear Morph: Sleep is essential to good health. You will both profit from the change. But this sort of a transition, after 20 years, should be engineered with imagination and tact.

Buy him a whistle for his bedside table. Have the following inscription engraved on it: "If you want me, just whistle."

Dear Ann Landers: Topic: Family Hassle. Our parents will soon be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary. We, the children, are getting together to give them a lovely party. Now comes the problem about the family picture.

My brother, his wife and children had their pictures taken for their last Christmas card. You'd have to see it to believe it, Ann. They all wore red and green plaid jackets. A more ludicrous sight would be hard to imagine. They looked like a musical unit.

My sister-in-law told me today they've decided to wear their plaid jackets in the 50th anniversary picture. The rest of us think the women should all wear plain, dark dresses and the men dark suits. The children can wear pastels — not prints, stripes or polka dots.

Are we being unreasonable? — Say Cheese

Dear Cheese: Put it on the basis of majority rule and take a vote. That's the democratic way to settle the problem.

Dear Ann Landers: I got out of bed at 2:00 a.m. to write this letter. I hope "Super-Secretary" will read it.

I'm a secretary also, and I have a friend who thinks she is a Super-Everything. Recently she bought her boss a very expensive suit of clothes for his birthday. When she told me about it I was appalled. It seemed like a very personal gift — and outrageously expensive. To my amazement, I later heard that "Super's" boss was bragging to everyone in the building about it.

I thought maybe I was crazy and asked my boss for an opinion. He said he would never accept such a gift — that I was right.

What are your views, Ann? — Nevada Girl Friday

Dear Girl: I'm with you. A suit of clothes is too costly and too intimate a gift for a secretary to give her boss. By the same token, no boss should buy his secretary a dress — or worse yet, a fur coat. What grist for the gossip mill!

Hi-jinks in the Hays office

Visitors to the nation's capital during this Bicentennial year may be surprised to find many attractive female government employes wearing a button reading, "I can type."

This enigmatic statement is a response to the charges that Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D.-Ohio) put bosomy Elizabeth Ray on the Congressional payroll as his mistress. Ms. Ray, meanwhile, has informed the FBI and the House Ethics Committee that she knows of six other women who provided sex for members of Congress as part of their government jobs.

Washington loves nothing more than a sex scandal, and this is the juiciest to surface since Fannie Fox made a splash with Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.) in the Tidewater Basin last year. What's with these Democrats, anyway? They seem determined to make the nation forget Watergate for something a little more X-rated.

Hays, 65, a bridegroom of six weeks (whether a blushing bridegroom or not isn't clear) has admitted to having "personal relationships" with Miss Ray, 33, but denies she was solely on his staff to sleep with him. However, other employes testify that the curvaceous Miss Ray was seldom in the office, couldn't file correspondence or type, and wasn't even much good at sharpening pencils.

To me, there's naive that I am, the fascinating fact about the attack on Hays is not that he was sleeping out but that he was paying taxpayers' money for the privilege. "Keep a mistress if you will," is the talk on Capitol Hill, "but don't put her on your expense account."

"Whether or not a congressman has a liaison, there's no federal violation there and we're not interested," said an FBI spokesman. "If he hired her to walk his dog it would be the same thing."

Well — not QUITE the same thing, my dear old FBI, and, if I may say so, it is highly ungallant of you to suggest it. But the point about the use or misuse of federal funds is nicely taken.

The FBI is naturally still a little redfaced and defensive about its own recent pecadillos, so it is up to groups like the Public Integrity Unit of the Department of Justice and the Attorney-General's office to get to the bottom of the affair. And most enraged by the whole matter, as you might expect, is the 200-member Capitol Hill Women's Political Caucus, which wants to know why the $14,000-a-year job of Rep. Hays' mistress is not open to civil service tests and qualifications.

As we all know, governmental jobs must be properly advertised in federal agencies, unemployment bureaus and post offices. The proposal must list job description, qualifications required, previous experience, hours, pay, and chances for advancement. The notification must also include a description of the services required, working conditions, and fringe benefits such as retirement, accident insurance, medical coverage and maternity allowances.

It says something for the moral atmosphere of our times that public indignation is focussed not on the sex-life of the Congressman but upon his using public funds to satisfy his appetites.

When the average taxpayer sweats blood to pony up the tab on his Form 1040, he likes to think the hard-earned and hard-spared money goes to a battleship or a hospital, and not to a perfumed boudoir on Pennsylvania Avenue.

Dr. Lamb

Throw away old vitamin C

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it true that vitamin C tablets not only lose their potency but also develop some sort of a poison with age, that is if they are kept a long period of time?

About four years ago a doctor recommended I get natural vitamin C and I bought two jars of 400 tablets. I used one and the other got mislaid in moving two or three times. Now I have found it. Can I safely take them?

DEAR READER — Throw them away. It is true that vitamin C tablets, natural or synthetic, lose their potency with time. Even if the tablets are stored in a refrigerator they will lose about half of their potency in a year's time.

Recent studies show that vitamin C is converted to oxalic acid. This substance has been implicated in triggering diabetes, kidney stones and urinary tract infections. These problems are more likely to occur in the person who takes very large doses of old vitamin C.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-3, Vitamin C (Ascorbic Acid) to give you a better idea of what you can and cannot expect from taking vitamin C. Others can obtain this information by forwarding 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Certainly vitamin C is an important and essential vitamin for health. Your best source of it is in good wholesome foods found in a balanced diet, specifically fruits and vegetables.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 19, in great physical condition, and lift weights three days a week. I would like to know how much milk is too much for me. I have been drinking a gallon a day for its protein content but have heard that much is harmful to the bones and also makes the face break out. Is this true?

DEAR READER — Milk is a good source of both protein and calcium. You don't need that much protein though to build a good muscular body. A gallon of milk will give you 136 grams of protein. You won't need more than 100 grams of protein from milk, meat and all sources combined to give you enough for muscle building. A pound of lean muscle will contain only 100 grams of protein.

The problem is that a gallon of milk also gives you 440 milligrams of cholesterol and the daily recommended limit is about 300. You will need part of that allotment in eating meat, fish, chicken and other important foods that also contain cholesterol. Milk is also high in fat. Whole milk contains 34 grams of fat a quart or about 300 calories of fat. Nearly half of the calories in whole milk are from fat. It is properly classified as a high fat food. You can eliminate the dangers of a high fat cholesterol intake by using fortified skim milk or buttermilk.

The calcium is not a problem. If you take in more than you need it will simply be eliminated from the body, either through the urine or it won't be absorbed in the first place. The milk will not cause your face to break out unless you have some form of allergy which is most unlikely.

I would recommend that you have a quart of fortified skim milk daily and balance your diet with adequate amounts of poultry, fish and lean meats.

Two wrongs make a right

By Oswald & James Jacoby

This may well be the comic hand of 1976. All the players were great experts which may explain what happened. Experts can play better than anyone, but they also can play worse.

The game was match points and East and West were not vulnerable. Therefore, East decided to try a screwball, notrump to stir things up. South's double was correct and West's two club-call was designed to ask East to show a suit, but East passed, whereupon South jumped to three notrump.

West opened the jack of diamonds. South won with his king, looked over the enemy convention card to see that the jack lead showed either zero or two higher. So South decided to get brilliant. He led the 10 of clubs to dummy's queen, played a low spade and stuck in his king. At this point the defense could have cashed seven more tricks, but West decided that East had a long heart suit. He led his jack of hearts and South made the five notrump he had available from the start of the play.

Ford's starting from scratch in national political chase

Editor's Note — This is the third of three stores on the staffs of presidential candidates. It focuses on President Ford's organization.

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

Although President Ford is running with most of the usual benefits of incumbency, he has never waged a national political campaign before. So, like most other candidates, he had to start from scratch.

A relative handful of experienced professionals have put together a Ford organization from new faces to fight off one of the toughest nomination challenges any president has faced in modern times.

"Because the President has never run nationally before and had no cadre to call on, and because of the residual effects of Watergate and the like, there seems to be a shortage of professional campaign experience," said campaign press secretary Peter F. Kaye.

"We're using a lot of people who had never done this sort of thing before," Kaye said. "If we find a good one, we move him to other states.

"Some of them may not have had much experience before, but they sure as hell have it now," Kaye said.

However, making up for any lack experience in the ranks of the President Ford Committee is a top crust of some of the veteran pros of elective politics. The top lineup includes:

—Rogers C.B. Morton, 61, the campaign manager. Morton is a former congressman, GOP national chairman, secretary of interior and Commerce, and White House political adviser. He has managed several campaigns and was Richard Nixon's floor manager at the 1968 convention.

—Stuart Spencer, 48, chief of the political division. Spencer is one of the pioneer political consultants and partner in a Long Beach, Calif., public relations firm whose past clients have included Ronald Reagan and Nelson Rockefeller.

—Royston C. Hughes, chief of administration. Hughes is a longtime Morton associate, joining his congressional staff in 1969 and serving as assistant secretary when Morton was at Interior. However, this is is his first crack at running a major campaign organization.

—James A. Baker III, deputy chairman in charge of delegate operations. Baker is another one with no national campaign experience but extensive background in Texas politics. He came to PFC from the Commerce Department where he was undersecretary. Before that he was partner in a Houston law firm.

—Kaye, 48, the press secretary and one of the most experienced and politically savvy men in the campaign. Kaye is a former political writer for the San Diego Union and news director of a San Diego television station. More recently he was a producer and correspondent for the National Public Affairs Center for Television and won an Emmy for his reporting of the Sentate Watergate hearings. Kaye also was a press aide in the 1952 Eisenhower campaign and assistant press secretary in the 1960 Nixon campaign. He has credits in a number of California campaigns as well.

—Robert Mosbacher, 48, finance chairman. A Houston businessman active in Texas politics, he is new to the national scene.

—Robert P. Odell Jr., 32, executive director of the campaign's finance committee. He is a former executive director of the Republican National Finance Committee and a expert in direct mail and telephone solicitations.

—Fred Slight, 29, research director. Slight joined PFC from the White House staff and has experience with the Republican National committee.

—Robert Viser, general counsel. He has minor political experience but is holding his first major role in a national campaign.

Because of financial difficulties and the approaching end of the primary season, the PFC already has begun to trim its ranks from a one-time payroll of about 200 employes down to 117 at last count. More layoffs are expected.

The President Ford Committee operates out of a suite in a downtown Washington office building a few blocks from the White House. Morton, who became chairman last March, had been Ford's political adviser at the White House and still spends about a third of his time there.

Morton took command of the PFC after the original manager, Howard "Bo" Callaway, left under the shadow of allegations he had used his influence as secretary of the Army to win concessions for his Colorado ski resort.

Because of Morton's longtime friendship with Ford and the political cool of the professional staff at PFC, relations between the White House and the campaign are unusually smooth for such a divided command.

Spencer, who was interim chairman between Callaway's departure and Morton's appointment, is the acknowledged political brain at PFC. Since he keeps a low profile and allows the chiefs to hold the spotlight, he manages to call the shots with a minimum of flap.

The White House retains control over Ford's physical presence, but PFC feeds the political facts of life.

"We tell them where we want him and where we can afford him," Kaye said. "The scheduling and physical arrangements are done at the White House, although we pay for it".

Speeches are written by Ford's regular staff writers, but PFC Provides information from the states where Ford will be appearing.

The committee also coordinates and filters requests for Ford appearances, interviews and such and makes recommendations to the White House. It also manages the use of outside surrogate speakers and local officials within a state who want to work for Ford.

So far the PFC has raised over $7.5 million and gotten about $2 million in matching federal funds with more federal money due. But it has spent about $9.3 million.

"We also have some debts and commitments," Kaye said, "and we're going to be bumping up against that $13 million spending limit pretty quick."

This is one reason the PFC has been laying off paid staff members. It also is one reason Ford is expected to spend less time on the campaign stump. "We don't have the money to send him," Kaye said.

Even before he knew he would face such a strong challenge from Ronald Reagan, Ford committed his campaign to an exhausting schedule unheard of for an incumbent president by saying he would contest every primary.

Consequently, PFC set up an organization in every state with a state chairman and state budget for each. It also established nine regional coordinators.

While this has been a strain on Ford's resources for the nomination fight, his workers see it as a plus for the fall campaign if he is the GOP nominee.

Although there has been a lot of publicity about a new campaign for Ford since he fell behind Reagan in delegate strength, the change is more one of presidential style than a shift in strategy at PFC.

Actually, this is the third or fourth "new" Ford campaign. The first shift came in the Florida primary campaigning last March when Ford found himself running behind Reagan.

The biggest change then was a major buildup of outside professional manpower in Florida, which got the Ford vote thoroughly organized and pulled out a Ford victory.

But at the same time Ford began shifting his own style. For months he had seldom mentioned Reagan by name and never in harsh terms. But in Florida he took off the gloves and began picturing Reagan as an extremist who shouldn't be trusted with the presidency.

While Ford won in Florida he was clobbered in Texas where the anti-Reagan rhetoric hit its peak. Now Ford's handlers are returning to the initial strategy of presenting him in a presidential posture and saying less and less about Reagan.

"The word now is P-P-T, Peace, Prosperity and Trust," Kaye said. "He's working on the feeling that he's an incumbent president and that under him the country has prospered and he has restored faith and confidence in the White House."

PFC also is making some manpower and organizational adjustments as the nomination race reaches the wire, but they are more the result of the changing situation than a strategy shift.

"As we come down to fewer and fewer primary and caucus states, we have fewer and fewer to worry about," Kaye said. "We can keep our best people and concentrate them where we need them."

Almanac

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, June 4, the 156th day of 1976. There are 210 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1942, the Pacific War Battle of Midway began. The naval and air warfare ended in the first decisive defeat for Japan in the war.

On this date:

In 1647, the English army seized England's King Charles I as a hostage.

In 1805, the United States concluded a peace treaty with Tripoli.

In 1831, Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg was chosen as the first King of Belgium.

In 1896, Henry Ford made a successful run with his car — in a nightime drive around streets of Detroit.

In 1936, the first Socialist government of France took office under Premier Leon Blum.

In 1946, Juan Peron was inaugurated President of Argentina.

Ten years ago: NATO nations met in Brussels, Belgium, to chart a new course after France's military withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Five years ago: Thirteen disabled North Vietnamese prisoners of war who wanted to return home were rejected by the Hanoi government and returned to captivity in South Vietnam.

One year ago: The Greek Parliament decided that former King Constantine II would be permitted to return to Greece to run for political office if he chose.

Today's birthdays: Actress Rosalind Russell is 64 years old. Opera singer Robert Merrill is 57.

Thought for today: He who will not economize will have to agonize — Confuscius, Chinese philosopher, 551-479 B.C.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, an American soldier helping prepare New York defenses in the Revolution wrote: "This day is the king's birthday. No festivity, joy or mirth were discovered on this occasion."

File for divorce

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., and his wife of 34 years have filed a joint divorce petition in Arapahoe County District Court, an aide says.

The spokesman said Tuesday that a hearing on the petition by the first-term senator and his wife, Eileen, has been set for Oct. 12.

Under Colorado law when a joint petition is filed, no grounds are required.

The couple has three daughters, none of whom lives at home.

Mrs. Haskell, who lives in Littleton, a Denver suburb, declined to discuss the petition when contacted.

More plastics will be used

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Use of fiber glass reinforced plastics (FRP) office products will grow from 10 million pounds in 1973 to 45.5 million pounds by 1980, according to Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

The 1980 projection includes 12 million pounds of FRP typewriters and word processing equipment, 9 million pounds in copiers and 2 million pounds in calculators and adding machines.

Rhode Island

Rhode Island is distinguished historically for its contributions to freedom of conscience and action, begun by Roger Williams, founder of Providence, who was exiled from Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1636, and Anne Hutchinson, exiled in 1638. The first Baptist church in the United States was founded in Providence the same year. Rhode Island gave protection to Quakers in 1657 and to Jews from Holland in 1658.

Fire erupts at Chinook

Sparks from a workman's grinding tool ignited 55-gallon drums of resin an acetone sending huge clouds of smoke above the Chinook International, Inc., plant in La Verne Thursday morning.

Fire Chief Robert Lapp said the loss was slight since the blaze was confined to about 15 of the drums. There were no injuries.

Swim lesson signups due

A preregistration for summer swimming and lessons will be conducted by the La Verne Recreation Department June 19 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The signup will be held at Las Flores Park pool. Classes start June 21.

The department once more is offering family swim passes for $17.50 that will allow unlimited use of the pool by the entire family throughout the summer.

Those who are interested may call the Recreation Department, 593-4571, for more details.

Tax help available for senior citizens

A state tax representative will be in Pomona on June 14, 21 and 28 to help senior citizens file claims for Senior Citizens Property Tax Law benefits.

The representative will be at the senior citizens' office at 350 W. Mission Blvd. (Municipal Courts Building), from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on each Monday.

Benefits available to qualifying senior citizens are partial reimbursement for 1975-76 property taxes. Eligibility requirements are home ownership between July 1, 1975 and June 30, 1976, be at least 62 as of Jan. 1, 1976 and have a total household income of less than $10,000.

Claims must be filed by Aug. 31.

Claim forms may be secured from the tax representative or by writing to Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance, P.O. Box 1588, Sacramento, 95807.

Persons are urged to file as early as possible. Benefit payments begin in early July and are paid in the order claims are received.

California Scientists Urge NO on 15.

"We as scientists and engineers believe that the energy crisis is a serious and growing problem for the United States. Every day our Country becomes more and more dependent on foreign nations for our energy resources. If we do nothing to free ourselves from this dependence, we will soon reach the point where another oil embargo could result in massive disruption of our economy. We therefore believe that passage of Proposition 15 is contrary to the best interest of the people of California and the United States. Its practical effect would be to restrict the use of one available major source of electricity just when it is most needed.
We urge the voters of California to vote No on 15."

Reagan makes stronger impression, poll reveals

NEW YORK (AP) — Ronald Reagan has made a strong impression during this campaign year with his advocacy of higher military spending and a overhaul of the welfare system, an Associated Press poll shows.

Reagan's stands provide the two clearest links between a candidate and an issue in the otherwise blurred picture of presidential contenders and positions that Americans now see after our months of intensive primary campaigning.

In the poll designed to probe Americans' views on the issues, the only other clear link of a candidate and an issue come from supporters of Rep. Morris Udall with their accurate perception of his views and their concern about pollution, civil rights and solving energy problems.

The survey, conducted for The AP by the Roper Organization of New York between May 8 and May 15, found that an average of more than half of the potential voters didn't know where their favorite candidate stands on five major issues.

The other major findings of the poll were:

—Economic issues head the list of Americans' concerns during this election year, with 59 per cent of those questioned naming inflation, unemployment or holding down government spending as their main worry.

— Crime was the second biggest concern for Americans. Lawlessness, drug abuse and criminals, and corrupt public officials were included in the top five issues.

—About 57 per cent of all Americans are choosing a candidate to support for his personal qualities, not for his stands on the issues. More than 58 per cent of Jimmy Carter's supporters, for example, said personal factors were the basis for their decision, compared to only 20 per cent who cited issues.

—In addition to more than half of the people not knowing where the candidates stand, many of supporters were wrong in naming where their favorite candidate stood on five major issues. Carters' backers were the most likely to name the wrong stand for their contender, missing four out of five issues picked to differentiate among the candidates.

During the second week in May when the poll was conducted, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and Sen. Frank Church scored their initial primary victories. Because the national perceptions of Brown and Church had not then taken shape, the poll did not test their supporters' perceptions.

By the date of the interviewing, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace had stopped campaigning and was running fourth in delegates. Thus, his supporters' perceptions were also not tested.

Reagan's supporters stand out in the poll above those of other candidates for their precision in pegging his stands on military spending and welfare.

By a 65-9 margin, his backers correctly linked him with pushing for more money for national defense. But even then 26 per cent of his supporters could not say where he stood.

Reagan's supporters are the main reservoir of concern about U.S.-U.S.S.R relations and military spending found by the poll. About 22 per cent of his backers named these two issues as the most important ones, close to double the figure for any other candidate.

Looking at the poll another way, concern over detente is centered with self-identified conservatives. About 14 per cent of the conservatives named it the major issue, compared with only 9 per cent of moderates and 10 per cent of liberals.

The former California governor's supporters also correctly linked him by a 51-8 edge with proposals to turn the welfare system back to state control.

Even for Reagan, however, his supporters' view of his stand on issues blurs when they move away from the two top positions.

They incorrectly said by a 25-16 margin that he supports dismantling the oil companies. But 59 per cent of his backers didn't know where he stood on this issue.

By narrow margins, they correctly said he favors a constitutional amendment to end abortions and opposes the goverment guarantee everyone a job. But the percentages of those who didn't know his stand on the issues was far higher than on the military and welfare questions.

Reflecting this precision in their views, Reagan's supporters were the lowest of any candidates' in saying personal factors were the basis for their decision. But 48 per cent of his backers still cited personality over issues.

About 29 per cent of those who said Reagan is their favorite candidate cited issues as the reason for their decision, the same percentage of Udall's backers who cited issues as their reason. About 57 per cent of his supporters say personal factors were the basis for their decision.

Udall's supporters correctly gauged his stand on all five issues examined in the poll, the best showing of any candidate. Here are the issues and the margins by which his supporters named his stand correctly:

—For government guaranteed jobs, 47-19;

—For breaking up major oil companies, 46-10;

—Against anti-abortion amendment, 41-9;

—Against spending more on military, 53-20;

—Against turning welfare back to state, 25-20.

This reflects in part the greater percentage of college educated persons in the Arizona Democrat's camp. More than 50 per cent of his backers have a college education, at least one third more than any other candidates' supporters.

College educated persons in the poll tended to know more about the issues, to be more likely to name the candidate's position and to be more likely to say issues are the reason for their choice.

It is no surprise that Udall has the greatest percentage of supporters who identify themselves as liberals, since he has said he is the liberals' candidate. The poll found 61 per cent of his support came from people who identify themselves as liberals.

Udall's supporters also named issues long identified as liberal as their main concerns far more than any other candidates'.

For example, solving energy problems and insuring equal rights for Americans of all races were each major issues for 23 per cent of Udall's supporters, ranking right behind inflation and unemployment. Next was air and water pollution with 20 per cent.

No other candidate's supporters cited those issues with nearly that frequency.

Only on one of five issues did Carter's supporters pick his position correctly — government guaranteed jobs — which they pegged by a 42 per cent to 14 per cent margin.

But most of the supporters of all the candidates listed in the survey correctly identified the positions of their favorite candidate on this issue that has been a prime focus of Democratic legislative efforts this year in Congress.

President Ford's supporters correctly identified his positions on three issues, missed on one and split evenly on the other.

Reagan's influence with the GOP partisans was most clearly seen in the responses of Ford's supporters on the welfare issue.

Ford's backers said he supports turning welfare over to the states by a 40 per cent to 17 per cent margin. Ford has said he favors welfare reform, but has opposed placing the financial burden of welfare solely on the states.

Just over 56 per cent of Ford's supporters say personal factors were the crucial factor in their decision to support him, against 20 per cent who cited his stands on the issues. About 18 per cent said both factors were crucial.

Non-candidate Sen. Hubert Humphrey was the choice of some of those interviewed. Their explanation of their reasons for picking the Minnesota Democrat broke down this way:

—Personal factors, 66 per cent;
—Issues, 17 per cent;
—Both, 16 per cent; and
—Don't know, 5 per cent.

Supporters of Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who has halted active campaigning, gave the following explanation of their support for the Washington democrat:

—Personal factors, 65 per cent;
—Issues, 11 per cent;
—Both 13 per cent; and
—Don't know, 9 per cent.

THE AMERICAN WAY OF CHOOSING — Chart details the basis on which supporters of various presidential contenders made their choice in this election year. Poll, taken for The AP during the second week in May by the Roper Organization of New York, ask respondents whether they choose their man based on his stand on the issues, on the person himself, on both of the preceding, or if they were unsure why they made a choice.

How Roper poll was conducted

NEW YORK (AP) — The Associated Press Poll is based on face-to-face interviews with 2,001 men and women over 18 years old conducted across the continental United States from May 8 through May 15.

The interviews were conducted in the respondents' homes by The Roper Organization of New York.

The households were chosen by a procedure designed to give each household in the country a relatively equal chance of being chosen for the survey.

Quotas were imposed during the interviewing for sex, age and employment to insure proper representation in the sample of all groups.

For error due solely to chance, it is possible to say with 95 per cent certainty that the results from a sample of this size will vary no more than 2.2 percentage points either way.

For subsamples of the entire poll — for example, an individual candidate's supporters — the error due solely to chance could be larger. The actual error would depend on the number of the candidates' supporters.

Six questions — designed by the AP staff in consultation with Roper — were asked each respondent for the AP Poll.

First they were handed a card listing 14 issues and asked which one or two of these was personally the most important during this election year.

They were asked for which of six candidates — Ford, Carter, Humphrey, Jackson, Reagan or Udall — they would be most inclined to vote. The respondents were pressed to identify which candidate they "leaned toward the most" if they did not first identify one of the six.

Each respondent was also handed a card with a statement of a position on each of five major issues. The respondent was asked if the candidate he or she prefers agrees or disagrees with that statement.

The respondent was asked if he or she personally agreed with their candidate on all those five issues.

Then the respondent was asked whether the candidate's stands on the issues or his intelligence, character and the kind of person he was the major factor in the choice of whom to support.

A four-day, 40-hour work week proposed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 50-cent increase in the minimum wage and a four-day work week are among the revised work regulations proposed by the state Industrial Welfare Commission.

The proposed changes announced over the weekend by IWC Chairman Howard A. Carver would affect working conditions in 14 industries. Public hearings are scheduled for next month.

The proposals would increase the minimum wage from $2 to $2.50 for about 1.6 million workers employed primarily in retail trade, restaurants, hotels and motels, amusement and recreation and clothing industries.

The proposals would allow a 40-hour, four-day week if both employer and employe agree to four consecutive 10-hour work days.

The IWC also would like to delete a section of its 1968 work orders which permitted employers to apply workers' tips toward the minimum wage. That order has already been nullified by a state law.

In agricultural jobs, the commission proposes that workers earn doublepay for more than a 12-hour day. Employes in manufacturing industries would receive a $2.50 daily payment in addition to the minimum wage if required to work split shifts.

Carter said the proposals were based largely on recommendations by labor and management representatives. Final regulations are expected to be in force by Sept. 6.

Exempted from some or all of the proposed regulations are persons in administrative or professional positions, plus federal, state and local government jobs, student nurses, outside sales people, personal attendants and babysitters, professional actors and actresses, and regularly indentured apprentices.

Public hearings on the proposals will be held June 7-8 in Fresno, June 9-11 in Los Angeles and June 15-17 in San Francisco.

Israelis riot over factory

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — About 500 Israeli rioters battled police with sticks, rocks, fire bombs, explosives and flames today in Tel Aviv, police said. The clash was sparked by a city hall order to tear down an illegally built factory in the Ezra district of the Hatikva slum.

Officials said about 300 policemen and paramilitary border guards were called out to quell the riot and two helicopters hovered over the scene. They said the mob threw stones and at least four fire bombs and set protest bonfires in the unpaved streets.

Police said four rioters and four policemen were injured in the clashes. One hand grenade exploded in the midst of the fracas, but police said it was not responsible for any of the casualties.

Despite the protest, city workers began battering down the small concrete factory with sledge hammers. The demolition is as part of a program by Tel Aviv Mayor Shlomo Lahat to rid the city of buildings put up without permits.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin rejected demands by Israeli Arabs for an end to Israeli land purchases in Galilee and for an investigation of the March 30 rioting in which six Arabs were killed.

Striking back

American companies — in an attempt to restore their public credibility — are rapidly escalating their communications programs, The Conference Board reports. A survey of nearly 500 top company executives finds that declining public confidence in business is now rated as the No. 1 problem facing corporate management. Stepped-up efforts are underway to improve company communications with customers, stockholders, the media and federal, state and local governments.

Looking over the school year

Looking back, it wasn't a bad year for the three SCIAC schools in the valley.

La Verne started it off winning its first-ever conference football championship. The Leos and Redlands were co-title holders.

Ben Hines got the Leopards' SCIAC crown back in baseball. That enabled the Leos to start and end the school year with championships.

Over at Pomona-Pitzer, new Soccer Coach Charles Seward led the Sagehens to a co-championship with cross-campus rival Claremont-Mudd and a district title before falling in area play.

Walt Ambord, beleaguered in football, coached the Sagehens' wrestlers to an SCIAC dual meet and conference tournament championship.

Claremont-Mudd, under Tom Grall, won its second straight conference swimming crown. Hank Krieger led the tennis team to the SCIAC co-championship and snared District Coach of the Year Honors.

A puzzling problem

Athletics at the Claremont Colleges (Claremont Men's, Harvey Mudd, Pomona and Pitzer) present a puzzle.

Six outright or co-championships would lead one to assume the athletic programs at the schools are in good shape. Yet the fact remains football and baseball are in terrible shape at Pomona-Pitzer and basketball may be headed the same way.

Things aren't as bad YET at Claremont-Mudd. But if records the past five years mean anything, a decline certainly has set in. With Claremont Men's going co-educational and academic requirements going up, prospects are that the decline will toboggan.

Let's take a look at both schools in the three sports for the last five years.

Pomona-Pitzer has won only eight football games of 44. The Sagehens have won only two games in the last three years. In the last three years they have been outscored, 1000-427. Last year the 'Hens scored a grand total of 68 points to the opposition's 359.

Football is a rough game. If a P-P football player ever suffers critical injury, a lawyer could probably make a good case against the school for allowing these outmanned squads to take the physical beating they take every week.

In baseball, the Sagehens have won 34 and lost 103 in the last five years. A coach of a team outside the SCIAC told me, "It's a shame those boys have to go through that. If anyone thinks they enjoy going out and being humiliated almost every time, they're crazy."

Basketball hasn't been as bad with a 49-72 mark. But the last two years have produced only 15 wins in 46 games.

Things are better, as noted, at C-M. But after a 7-2 year in football in 1971, the Stags have won 12, lost 21 the last four years.

It's the same way in basketball. After a 16-9 season in 1971-72, the Stags have won 24 and lost 75 in the four years since.

Baseball to decline

Bill Arce has a proud record in baseball. The Stags have averaged nearly 26 wins a season. But Arce himself says for the first time ever, he lacks strong replacements coming back next year and dim prospects of filling the holes because of CMC going co-ed and raising the academic standards.

In a previous column, we pointed out the fact that the football, baseball and basketball programs at the schools were failing and in need of drastic action.

But "the dreamers in the ivory towers" still slumber. They think I fail to understand their concept of intercollegiate athletics.

Gentlemen. I DO understand. But your concept of "walk-on" athletics is now and has been FAILING to produce teams that are in anyway competitive.

You have young men who have never played high school football or baseball, playing against skilled athletes from other colleges who have been playing up to eight years or longer.

The result is, your teams are getting beaten more often than they win and, in the case of Pomona-Pitzer, are being humiliated on a regular basis.

I say to you, it is YOUR concept that is failing, and not my understanding of it. The concept is beautiful. It's ideal. But it isn't practical and it doesn't work.

Wake up before someone is seriously injured simply because you allow him to go out and get manhandled by bigger, better rested, more experienced athletes in the "spirit of intercollegiate athletics."

HURDLE CHAMP

Ganesha High's Lloyd Jones, the CIF champion in the high hurdles, will go after the state title today and Saturday at Edwards Stadium on the UC Berkeley campus.

Hough king of bullpen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Marshall, the 1974 Cy Young Award winner, is 3-3 and his earned run average is 4.18.

Charlie Hough is 7-0 and his ERA is 2.07.

So who is the Los Angeles Dodgers' No. 1 relief pitcher, Marshall or Hough?

"I won't rate my pitchers or anyone else," Dodger manager Walt Alston said Thursday night after Hough earned his seventh victory with three hitless innings as the Dodgers clipped San Francisco in 10 innings, 3-2, on Bill Russell's bases-loaded single.

"All I know is that Charlie Hough has been outstanding all season."

Hough, a knuckleball specialist, has a string of 10 1-3 scoreless innings and has permitted only two earned runs in his last 21 1-3 innings.

"Tonight is the best I've thrown, command-wise," Hough said after the Dodgers' second straight victory over the Giants who had previously whipped them four times in a row. "I felt I could have pitched all night."

The win got the Dodgers even with Cincinnati for first place in the National League West. Los Angeles opens a three-game series tonight at Dodger Stadium against the New York Mets. Burt Hooton will start tonight for the Dodgers, Tom Seaver for the Mets. Both are 4-4.

The Giants are at home in Candlestick Park tonight for the start of a nine-game homestand. Jim Barr, 2-4, will start against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Hough disclosed that he didn't throw his knuckleball exclusively.

"Actually, all the ground balls were on sliders and fast balls," he said. "But all three strikeouts were on knuckleballs."

The 28-year-old Hough took over for starter Tommy John in the eighth inning with the Giants ahead, 2-1. Los Angeles tied the game in the bottom of the eighth on an unearned run, the result of Randy Moffitt's bobble of Dusty Baker's bouncer to the mound with the bases loaded.

Los Angeles won it in the 10th against Gary Lavelle, 2-3, by loading the bases on a single by Ron Cey, sacrifice bunt by Joe Ferguson, intentional walk to Baker and error by shortstop Chris Speier on a doubleplay ball by pinch hitter Manny Mota. Russell then bounced one over Speier's head and Cey scored easily.

The Giants got two runs in the third off John when Derrel Thomas walked, went to third on Speier's double, scored on Bobby Murcer's sacrifice fly and Gary Matthews followed with a single to score Speier.

Bill Buckner batted in Los Angeles' first run in the fifth, following infield singles by Russell and Dave Lopes.

Track helps Jones in football

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

For Ganesha High's Lloyd Jones, the CIF champion in the 120-yard high hurdles, track is not really an end in itself.

Jones runs track because he thinks it improves his performance in his main interest, football.

"Ever since I was this high," said Jones, holding his hand about three feet off the ground, "I've wanted to be a professional athlete. I've played football, baseball and basketball, but this year I decided that football is the one."

Jones, an All-San Antonio League and All-Valley selection at wide receiver this past fall, averaged 38.1 yards per reception. The Ganesha senior will attend Brigham Young University next year on a full football scholarship.

"They said they'll let me run track, too," said Jones. "I'm glad because I think track really helps my speed for football."

Jones is one of four high school athletes in California who have run the high hurdles in under 14 seconds this year.

He, Ron Glenn of Locke High in Los Angeles and George Smith of La Sierra High in Sacramento have all run 13.9. Tom Bobertz of Serramonte High in Daly City is the state leader with a 13.8. The four will compete today and Saturday in the state meet in Berkeley.

Glenn was the only one of the four to run a sub-14 race in last week's sectional finals. He ran 13.9 in the L.A. City championships.

Jones won the Southern Section title at Cerritos College in 14.1, the second-best at a state qualifying meet.

"It's the third time I've pulled it," he sighed. "I guess it won't heal until I stop running.

Jones did noty work out this week until Wednesday, when he ran with his leg heavily taped. "It still hurts," he said, "but I don't think it slows me down too much."

Lloyd's biggest disappointment of the track season came in the CIF 3-A prelims at El Modena High, when he missed his heat of the 330 low hurdles. Thus his last races in that event were at the San Antonio League prelims and finals, where he ran 37.4 and 37.5.

"That really bothered me," he admitted. "It still bugs me. I was concentrating so hard on running my best race that I thought the third heat (the one in which he was scheduled to run) was only the second. I was busy checking out my lane."

"I'm sure Lloyd would be under 37 seconds by now if he hadn't missed that race," said Doug Westlake, Ganesha head track coach. The top seed for the state meet is San Fernando's Charles White, who ran a national record 36.0 Saturday at the L.A. City finals.

In the highs, Westlake predicted that a 13.8 would probably win the state meet. "We've had Lloyd working out at a 13.6 pace lately," said Westlake. "If he runs that, he'll win for sure.

"Lloyd definitely has the best form in Southern California," continued the Ganesha coach. "It's just a matter of concentration. Nobody can touch him from the third hurdle on. He just has to get a good start and get over the first three quickly."

Jones' chief competitor so far this year has been Loyola's Al Sanford. They have gone head-to-head in four races — the finals at the Mt. San Antonio Relays, the 3-A prelims and finals and last week's state qualifying meet. Jones won three of the four, all except the 3-A finals, when both were timed in 14.1.

Lloyd, a 6-foot-3½, 180-pounder, figures he has a good chance at becoming a pro football player after four years at BYU as a business major.

"At Brigham Young I should get the kind of coaching and training I need to reach my full potential," he said. "I've been playing wide receiver all my life, since I was in Pop Warner. When you do something that long, if you've got a few tools, you get good at it."

Joe Gilliam is available

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League have placed disgruntled backup quarterback Joe Gilliam on waivers, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reports.

After unsuccessful efforts to trade Gilliam, the Steelers put him on the waiver list Tuesday, and he'll become a free-agent unless claimed by another team within 10 days, the paper said in today's editions.

The Steelers had no comment on the report. "We will neither confirm it or deny it," said a team spokesman.

Chargers sign Scott Sanders

Cal Poly safety Scott Sanders has signed a contract with the San Diego Chargers as a free agent, it was announced by both parties Thursday.

Sanders (6-2, 180) earned All-California Collegiate Athletic Association honors in 1974 as a junior and receeived honorable mention recognition last season.

At Poly, Sanders intercepted five passes each season.

He came to Poly from Mt. Hood Community College (Ore.) after playing his high school ball at Miraleste in Palos Verdes. His younger brother, Mark, will be a senior running back at Poly next fall.

"I am really happy to sign with the Chargers," Sanders said. "I credit Coach Jim Skipper for converting me into a safety."

Skipper coaches the defensive backs at Poly for head coach Andy Vinci.

Sandy Hawley enjoys big day

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — For those horse race enthusiasts who prefer to bet on the jockeys rather than the horses, Thursday at Hollywood Park was their day — if they put their money on Sandy Hawley.

The nation's leading rider scored four victories, ran second twice and if anyone bet $2 across the board — to win, place and show — on Hawley's seven mounts Thursday it would have been worth a nice $44.80 profit.

Hawley stole the show from 4-year-old Tuscarora, winner of the $15,000 feature with Marco Castaneda up.

Hawley, however, was the main story.

Hawley now has 67 victories in 40 days at Hollywood Park and 190 since Jan. 1 to lead all other jockeys in the United States. His victories Thursday were not all on favorites, either.

After running second on favored Venture's Gain in the first race, Hawley took the second on Theologian at $6.60 and won the third aboard Strike Three at $9.40.

He did not ride in the fourth but won the fifth on Intimidator at $10.40. He failed to ride in the sixth race, finished fifth in the seventh and second to Tuscarora on Drive of Roses in the feature.

He capped the day by scoring in the ninth on That's The Mama's at $16.80.

It was Hawley's fourth "quadruple" at Hollywood Park this season. However, Hawley had 76 victories at this stage of the 1975 Hollywood Park season, yet he remains far ahead of second-place Laffit Pincay Jr. in the local jockey standings. Pincay drew a blank Thursday and has 43 winners.

Favored Tuscarora carried 121 pounds and paid $3.40, $2.60 and $2.20.

Angels visit Fenway Park

BOSTON (AP) — The California Angels will be trying to climb out of the American League West cellar tonight when they open a weekend stand against the Boston Red Sox at Fenway Park.

The Angels will send Don Kirkwood, 1-5, against Rick Wise, 3-3, in the series opener.

The Angels trail West Division leader Kansas City by nine and one-half games. The Red Sox are eight games back of New York in the East.

Ervin signs with Stanford

STANFORD — Shortstop Todd Ervin of Citrus College is one of 13 prep and junior college baseball players to sign letters-of-intent at Stanford University.

Ervin, a former Claremont High star, was recently named to the All-Mission Conference team and All-Southern California JC second team.

He hit .346 and .374 in his two seasons with the Owls and set Citrus career records for runs scored (72) and walks (73). He also had 100 hits for the Owls.

Weather good, site bad for Poly

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — From all indications, the upcoming NCAA Division II World Series, slated to start here Saturday, will be blessed by clear weather and a highly competitive six-team field.

However, the site of the Division II nationals, Lamphier Field, is not exactly Busch Memorial Stadium. In fact, Lamphier Field is not even Upland Memorial Park.

A bleary-eyed Cal Poly team discovered that fact Thursday upon viewing the site of the 1976 Division II finals.

The Broncos' 21-man playing roster arrived here in the Illinois State Capital at 8 a.m. PDT after an all-night flight and a two-hour bus trip from St. Louis. Poly head coach John Scolinos and assistants Dick Parkhouse and Bob Wagner took a later flight and were expected to arrive this morning.

In Scolinos' absence, Gary Marks ran the club through a rather bizarre two-hour "practice" session Thursday afternoon at a local parochial school's field.

"The playing surface looked as though the Army had held grenade practice on it," according to Marks. After some futile attempts to conduct infield drills, the Bronco skipper settled for some batting practice. Fortunately, none of the players were injured on the crater-carved field.

If the experience at the NCAA-designated practice site was discouraging, the conditions at Lamphier Field are not a great deal better.

The diamond at Lamphier appeared to be in playable condition upon first viewing Thursday, although the basepaths looked to be on the sandy side and the infield grass apparently had not seen a mower in some time.

The facility itself left a lot to be desired for an NCAAchampionship event, or even a Little League championship event.

A total lack of press facilities was the most notable shortcoming, plus the seating consisted of temporary bleachers down the left and right field lines.

The bleachers directly behind the plate looked like Abe Lincoln must have split the rails used in their construction. One suspects fans sitting there for the tourney need not bring toothpicks to chew on, as they can easily obtain them in ample supply from the splintered benches.

Apparently, the city had hoped to construct permanent seating in time for the Series but tax revenues prevented that.

The dimensions at the field (which is actually the home diamond for Lamphier High) are 320 feet down the lines, 375 to the power alleys in left and right center and 400 to straightaway center.

The park is, in fact, a dead-ringer for Upland Memorial Park back in California down to its smallish dimensions and the green wooden outfield fence.

However, Upland definitely can claim superior press facilities and better lighting. Considering the fact that locals here say Lamphier is the best field around (a claim borne out by the condition of the practice field the Broncs used Thursday), one gets the impression that good baseball diamonds are as precious as real diamonds in Central Illinois.

While all six teams entered in the Division II finals will have to hassle with the lack of adequate practice fields, weather is apparently not going to be a concern for Saturday's three opening-round games. Partially cloudy skies with temperatures around 80 degrees are forecast for today and Saturday, with little chance of rain.

Marks confirmed Thursday that Poly's Bruce McPherson (12-7) would start on the hill in Saturday's 2:30 p.m. (PDT) opener against Livingston University of Alabama. Mike Regus (9-5) would then be on tap to start the second game on Sunday.

If the Broncos beat Livingston, they would play the winner of Saturday's Florida Southern-Southern Illinois (Edwardsville) game at 5 p.m. Sunday. Florida Southern is the defending Division II champion.

If Poly loses to Livingston, the Broncos will meet the loser of Saturday's Southeast Missouri-Sacred Heart (Connecticut) contest on Sunday at 10:30 a.m.

The double-elimination affair will run through June 9.

Bold Forbes is favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — Bold Forbes, the Kentucky Derby winner, will try and win the Belmont Stakes Saturday in a field of 3-year-olds of suprising quantity and questionable quality.

Six were expected for the $150,000-added, 1½-mile test at Belmont Park. But when entries were taken Thursday morning there were 11 in the field including seven non-stakes winners, four of which have never started in a stakes.

"Bold Forbes is the class of the race," said trainer John Campo, who will send out Preakness runnerup Play The Red, who was eighth in the Derby.

"Half of these horses have no class. They're bums. They are taking a shot. There is nothing wrong with that. Sure I'm trying to win with my horse, but Bold Forbes is the class."

Play The Red is still looking for his first stakes victory. But as the only other veteran of Triple Crown competition in the field and possessed of stretch-running ability, he is the early second favorite at 3-1. Bold Forbes is listed at 7-5.

One reason for the surprising number of entries can be ilustrated by a statement made by veteran trainer Phil Johnson, who does not have a horse in the Belmont.

"I don't think Bold Forbes can go a mile and a half," said Johnson. "I'd be surprised if Bold Forbes wins the Belmont."

Jack Gaver, who trains Belmont entrant Charleston, gave another reason. "Since Honest Pleasure and Elocutionist have defected, we thought we might as well take a shot."

Preakness winner Elocutionist is injured and Honest Pleasure, the beaten favorite in the Derby and Preakness, is being rested.

That the decision to test Bold Forbes and the 1½ miles did not come easy can be seen in the instance of Close to Noon. "We decided around 7 o'clock last night (Wednesday) to supplement him to the race. We have a lot of confidence."

Close to Noon was not nominated for the fee of $100 for the Belmont and had to be supplemented for $2,500. It will cost owner Mrs. Philip Hofmann another $10,000 to send him to the post at 2:38 p.m. PDT Saturday.

The expected entrants joining Esteban Rodriguez Tizol's Bold Forbes, who will be ridden by Angel Cordero Jr., from the No. 9 post, are Max Gluck's Play The Red, Jean Cruguet, No. 4; Howard P. Wilson's Great Contractor, Jacinto Vasquez, No. 8; Mrs. Carver Douglas' McKenzie Bridge, Darrel McHargue, No. 2; Christiana Stable's Best Laid Plans, Pat Day, No. 10, and Ogden Mills Phipps' Majestic Light, Jorge Velasquez, No. 7.

Others entered are Orme Wilson's Aeronaut, Ron Turcotte, No. 1; John Galbreath's Mullineaux, Miguel Rivera, No. 3; Greentree Stable's Charleston, Helidodoro Gustines, No. 6, and John Schiff's Quick Card, no rider, No. 11.

Each starter will carry 126 pounds in the race which will be televised by CBS and if 11 go, it will be worth $196,000, with $117,600 to the winner.

The stakes winners in the field are Bold Forbes, who counts seven added-money events in his 11 wins in 15 career starts; Majestic Light, who won the Cavalacade Handicap at Garden State Park May 15; Quick Card, who won the 1976 Olympic at Gulfstream Park, and Great Contractor, who won the Great American at Aqueduct last year.

Those who will be starting in a stakes for the first time are Aeronaut, winner of two of four career starts, Mullineaux who has won two of 17 races, and Close to Noon, who is three for 16.

Majestic Light won the 1 1-16mile Cavalcade on the grass; Great Contractor has raced 1½ miles twice on the grass and a few of the others also have grass experience.

"The race is not on the grass," said Laz Barrera, who trains Bold Forbes. "It is on the dirt."

Barrera also said he was confident Bold Forbes could carry his speed—which left him staggering at the end of the Preakness in which he finished third—for 1½ miles. He noted that Bold Forbes won at 1¼ miles on the front in the Derby and as for distance, he said: "It was a long way the first time he ran three-quarters."

While outwardly confident, Barrera was taking nothing for granted, not even the "bums."

"I'm afraid of every horse in the race," he said. "I've said that all along. There's a horse called McKenzie Bridge you have to watch."

McKenzie Bridge, fourth in the Hollywood Derby, won a 11-16-mile allownce race in a good performance at Belmont Park May 24.

But Barrera is sure of one thing about his front-running star Saturday. "He will be on the lead."

Celtics happy to return home

BOSTON (AP) — Accustomed as they are to winning, the Boston Celtics find themselves in a familiar position going into tonight's fifth game of the National Basketball Association's championship series.

Unaccustomed as they are to winning, the Phoenix Suns — the Celtics' opponents in the nationally televised best-of-seven series — find themselves in an unfamiliar position.

So far, each team has won two games, both on their home courts.

The pattern of the first four games was exactly the same as the Celtics followed in their two previous playoff series this season — against Bufflo and Cleveland, both of which they wound up winning in six games.

Ending — and winning — a championship series on the road also has been the Celtics' pattern over the years. Of the last three NBA titles they won — in 1968, 1969 and 1974 — the Celtics clinched them on the road.

The last time they won a championship at historic Boston Garden was 10 years ago, when they completed an unprecedented run of eight straight league titles.

Should the struggling but favored Celtics beat the Suns for the 13th consecutive time at home tonight, they could win the crown on the road again — in Game Six at Phoenix Sunday. If a seventh game is necessary, it would be at Boston Wednesday night.

Beating the Suns now, however, will not be as easy as originally expected. The Suns are bursting with confidence after defeating Boston twice at Phoenix. And they no longer are fearful of the proud Celtics.

They also realize they have avoided embarassment and humiliation by preventing a much-discussed Celtics sweep, and now have little more to lose, in this, their first experience in championship competition in the eight-year history of the franchise.

"I never thought at the beginning of the season that we'd be in the position we're in now," said Ricky Sobers, the Suns' battling backcourt rookie, "because we had so many new players."

Sobers had a lot of company in his thinking. The Suns appeared to have excellent potential, but they were considered a team of the future rather than of the present.

Claremont league serves pancakes

Dodgers coach Tommy Lasorda and Claremont-Mudd athletic director and baseball coach Dr. Bill Arce will be the guests of honor at the Claremont Little League Saturday.

The breakfast will be held at the College Park Field, south of the railroad tracks on College Ave. in Claremont, from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. Admission is donation of $1.00 with proceeds going to Claremont Little League operating expenses.

A "door prize" of a trip to Hawaii for two will be given with Lasorda and Arce drawing the lucky ticket.

Dr. Arce, only athletic director and baseball coach for the combined Claremont Mens-Harvey Mudd athletic program, was recently elected to the NAIA Baseball Hall of Fame.

4 teams may go to NBA

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Four American Basketball Association teams apparently have a shot—and some say a good one—at entering the National Basketball Association next season.

Indiana Pacers President Jim Hilliard confirmed Thursday that the ABA had talked with the older league about some ABA teams joining the NBA next year. The number arrived at was four—Indiana, New York, Denver and San Antonio.

"Yes, it is all true, and yes, I know it to be fact," said Hilliard. A recommendation by the NBA expansion committee would put a $4.5 million price tag on each new NBA franchise from the ABA.

Excluded from the plans were Kentucky and Utah, which was moved from St. Louis after last season. It was not known how the NBA arrived at the decision to exclude the two franchises.

However, Kentucky Colonels' owners John Y. and Ellie Brown have offered the team for syndication, claiming that they can no longer handle the team's expenses alone.

Acting as their agent, Jefferson County Attorney J. Bruce Miller was to have at least half the purchase price of $1.5 million covered by June 1, with the remainder covered by June 15. Miller informed the Browns earlier this week that he had raised half the money—$750,000.

A final decision whether to incorporate the ABA teams into the NBA would have to be made June 13-17 during the NBA Board of Governors meeting.

Some owners are known to oppose a merger of any sort. But the deal now has a new twist. The CBS television network has offered the NBA an incentive, in the form of extra cash in its package for rights to televising NBA games, for each new team up to four the NBA adds.

Sports briefs

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — John Davies, British Walker Cup golfer, knocked out defending champion Vinny Giles 3 and 1 in the quarterfinals of the British Amateur Championship today.

Giles, from Richmond, Va., began well on the old course at St. Andrews and was 2-up after six holes. But the Englishman won the 10th, 11th and 12th and seized the initiative.

Giles failed in his bid to win the championship two years running. The last American to do that was Lawson Little in 1934 and 1935.

PARIS, France — Harold Solomon struggled through five sets but beat Sashi Menon of India 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 6-2 to advance into the third round of the French Open Tennis Tournament.

CHICHESTER, England — American Bunny Bruning stunned top-seeded Linda Mottram of England 7-6, 6-4, 7-5 in the quarter-finals of the Roses Lawn Tennis Tournament.

BERLIN — Roger Pytell of East Germany became the first swimmer to go under two minutes in the 200 meter butterfly with a time of 1 minute 59.63 seconds.

Barbara Krause of East Germany set a world record in the 400-meter freestyle for women with a time of 4 minutes 11.69 seconds, 3.07 seconds faster than the previous record held by Shirley Babashoff of the United States.

Kornelia Ender of East Germany bettered the world record in the 100-meter backstroke with a clocking of 1 minute 1.62 seconds erasing the old mark of 1 minute 2.6 seconds set by teammate Ulrike Richter.

MALMOE, Sweden — Colin Holman, 36, British-born jockey, fell off his horse and was kicked to death by pursuing horses during a race at the Jaegerso track.

Bonita falls in CIF finals

By TIM CLARK
PB Correspondent

ORANGE — Bonita High had the cat in the bag and let it get away.

The Bearcats dropped the CIF 2A girls softball championship by a score of 7-6 to South Pasadena Thursday afternoon at Hart Park. Leading 6-4 going into the bottom of the sixth inning, Bonita allowed the Tigers to score three unearned runs, due particularly to a wild pitch that lodged itself in the backstop.

Bonita had all the momentum going into the sixth, having made an impressive comeback after falling behind quickly at 4-0, as the Tigers came roarin' out of the blocks in the first inning.

The Bearcats slowly scratched back, scoring two runs in the third on catcher Sherry Branam's fifth home run of the playoffs, and then forging ahead to a 6-4 advantage by scoring four runs on no hits (all unearned) in the fifth frame.

Jodi Mitchell led off the South Pasadena sixth with a sharp single to left off Bearcat ace Betty Garcia. After a Mitchell theft of second, Betty walked the No. 8 and 9 hitters in the Tiger lineup, Astrid Mulder and Mitzi Banwar to load the bases with no outs.

South Pasadena closed the gap to 6-5 when Alma Olmos' ground shot went through the legs of 'Cat second baseman Kathy Branam, allowing Mitchell to score. Following another out, the freak play of the day occurred, possibly robbing Bonita of the victory. With the sacks still loaded and two down, Sherry Branam couldn't handle a wild pitch by Garcia, as the ball rolled (rather skipped) to the backstop, where it came to rest firmly in he grip of the two iron poles that support the playing field's entrance gate.

As Sherry attempted to unscrew the ball from its captor, both Mulder and Olmos crossed home plate with Tiger runs 6 and 7, with the home umpire ruling both runners safe and not calling a dead ball, which according to softball rules, is exactly what had occurred.

So the Bearcats lost the championship, but one wouldn't know it from the postgame reception from the Bonita followers, who had filled the west stands despite the unusual 2 p.m. starting time.

"What can I say, we lost," said Bonita mentor Jean Brennecke. "It's too bad we had to lose it that way, but it's over. We had the game too. We were really nervous at the start, but once we knew we could win it we settled down . . . I really thought we had it . . ."

"No regrets though," added Brennecke. "We really did something special this year, and we are very proud of it. Things look very very good for next year too, because we're only losing two starters (outfielders Linda Christianson and Cathy Matza)."

Andrews, Boettcher honored

Barry Boettcher and Terry Andrews were named co-Most Valuable Athletes of the Pomona High track and field team Tuesday at the school's track awards banquet at La Verne College. John Norton, head track coach at Mt. San Antonio College, was the guest speaker.

Boettcher won the CIF 3-A mile championship this year while Andrews won the 440 title. Andrews is competing in the state finals this weekend, both in the 440 and as anchorman of the Red Devil mile relay team.

Larry Martin was named Most Improved Athlete and junior Anthony Miley was chosen Most Inspirational. Boettcher was also named Mr. Heart, Terry Ludwig was Mr. Guts, Jim Middleton was Mr. Character and Charles Cole received the Bill Bruce Memorial Award.

Coaches' awards went to Jim Donaldson, Ernest Jarnagin and Hank Zibell.

Junior varsity awards went to William Warren (most valuable), Louis Cole (most improved) and Carlton Williams (most inspirational) while frosh-soph honors went to Johnny Bullock (most valuable) and Van Andrews and Joe Warren (most improved). Jimmy Dean received the Bruce Award for frosh-soph athletes.

Girls' honors were bestowed upon Pam Green (most valuable), Barney Sue Carral (most improved) and Monique Gregoire (most inspirational), and Kim Moland was named Track Queen.

Boettcher also received a Helms Foundation Award as an All-CIF cross country runner.

Six captains were named for next year: Louis Cole, Dean, Curtis Goss, Karsem James, Miley and William Warren.

Archibald wants trade

NEW YORK (AP) — Backcourt star Nate Archibald of the National Basketball Association's Kansas City Kings said Tuesday he would like to be traded to the New York Knicks.

"My place is New York," Archibald told WNBC sportscaster Marv Albert. "I think I could play more years and get more out of it here."

Archibald, a native of New York, has four years remaining on his contract with the Kings. He thought that was no problem.

"A lot of guys who are dissatisfied have been traded," he said. "I've spent enough time in Cincinnati and Kansas City."

SD Thorobreds, LV Legion win

La Verne Legion Post 330 and San Dimas "A" Thorobreds went on the road for victories Thursday night.

Post 330 downed host Fullerton, 8-2, while San Dimas edged Temple City, 6-4.

David Drury won his first decision of the season for La Verne. He allowed just three singles — all in the third inning — and one earned run, while striking out five batters and walking three.

Robert Alexander backed up Drury with a double and two singles for three runs batted in. He stroked a two-run double in the third inning and an RBI single in the fourth, while Dennis Wetzel drove in two more with a bases-loaded single in the fourth. Scott Johnson and Bruce Hines each batted safely twice as La Verne scored all eight of its runs in the first four innings.

Bruce McNaught paced San Dimas' win with a triple, double and single for three RBI and Tim Brown added three singles and scored twice. McNaught's fifth-inning double drove in two runs to highlight a four-run rally.

La Verne (8-2) will meet San Dimas (2-2) at La Verne College Saturday at 11 a.m.

Campaneris wins award

NEW YORK (AP) — Bert Campaneris, the fleet shortstop of the Oakland A's who stole five bases in one game last week, has been named the winner of the American League Player of the Week award for May 24-30, league President Lee MacPhail announced today.

Ray Floyd believes he enjoys command

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ray Floyd surveyed the scoreboard, allowed a sly little smile to cross his face and observed: "I've been there before. I know how to handle it. I know how to prepare for it."

The tough, tour-tested Floyd, a former PGA champion, holder of a half-dozen titles, a record-setting, runaway winner of the Masters a couple of months back, was two strokes off the pace—but quite possibly in command—after the first round of the $200,000 Bicentennial Golf Tournament.

Of the other leaders, only Frank Beard has been there before. And Beard, once one of the game's greatest, has been mired in a deep, dismal slump for three years. He hasn't won in five.

On top after Thursday's opening round over the tight, tidy, little 6,687-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course was longshot rookie Tom Purtzer, who parlayed some phenomenal putting into a six-under-par 65.

The veteran Floyd and third-year-man Randy Erskine, who hasn't even come close to winning, were at 67, two shots back. With Beard at 68 were Jim Simons and Mike McCullough, two more non-winners.

While some of the more obscure names were moving to the top, a number of the game's top attractions were having their problems despite playing conditions—warm and sunny with just a gentle breeze—that Floyd characterized as "the best you could ask for."

Defending champion Tom Jenkins stumbled to a fat 77. Johnny Miller made a pair of double bogeys on his way to a 73. Leading money-winner Hubert Green shot 74. Ben Crenshaw was seven back at 72. Roger Maltbie, winner of last week's Memorial Tournament, had to play his last nine in 33 to match par 71.

Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Lee Trevino are not competing in this event that formerly was known as the Philadelphia Classic.

"There's a lot of pressure on you if you're leading, or close to the lead," said Floyd, who won his first title back in 1963.

Dick Tucker earns honor

COSTA MESA — Orange Coast College head football coach Dick Tucker has been named the South Coast Conference coach of the year for 1975-76.

Tucker was voted the honor by South Coast Conference athletic directors at their annual spring meeting held last weekend at Palo Mesa Inn near Oceanside.

Others nominated for the prestigious award included Wally Kincaid, Cerritos College baseball coach; Arlin Pirtle, Santa Ana College golf coach; Bill Reeves, San Diego Mesa College tennis coach; and Gene Victor, Mt. San Antonio College basketball coach.

Tucker's OCC grid squad won the national championship this past season, rolling up a perfect 11-0 record and capping the campaign with an impressive 38-14 victory over Rio Hondo College in the Avocado Bowl.

David Clyde has surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Clyde, the Texas Rangers bonus pitcher, has undergone apparently successful surgery to repair a pinched nerve in his left shoulder.

Dr. Frank Jobe said he operated for two hours on the young pitcher Wednesday at Centinela Hospital in Inglewood, Calif., and said it was too soon to say exactly how the arm would react.

Spikers save their energies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Villanova's Eamonn Coghlan, defending champion in the 1,500 meter run, voiced the sentiment of most of the stars in qualifying trials at the 55th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association Track and Field Championships.

"I caught up when I was supposed to," said Coghlan Thursday after winning a lackluster 1,500 heat in the ordinary time—for him—of 3:43.16.

John Ngeno, Washington State's defending double winner, said somewhat the same thing after qualifying for the 5,000-meter run with a third place finish.

"I was taking it easy," admitted Ngeno, who has won four NCAA titles at 5,000 meters. "I wasn't pushing myself because I have to run the 10,000 (final) tomorrow (Friday)."

That was the scene, everybody running, jumping or throwing just good enough to qualify for Friday semifinals or Saturday finals. There wasn't anyone even close to a record on a beautiful, sunlit day with the temperature in the low 70s and a refreshing wind blowing out of the northeast.

Only one defending champion was eliminated, Louisiana State's Larry Shipp in the 110-meter hurdles in which he finished sixth in his heat. UCLA's James Owens had the best time in the event — 13.88. Other qualifiers included San Jose State's Dedy Cooper (13.92), Arizona State's Gary Burl (14.10), and Auburn's James Walker (14.04). They'll be in the semifinals today.

Among the other defenders competing in the first of the three-day meet were: Coghlan in the 1,500; Ngeno in the 5,000; Reggie Jones of Tennessee in the 200; James Munyala of Texas-El Paso in the 3,000-meter steeplechase; and Earl Bell, the world record breaking pole vaulter from Arkansas State.

Tennessee's Jones ran second in his 200 heat, and won a heat of the 100-meter sprint in 10.34, fastest of the qualifiers for today's semifinals. Munyala finished fourth in his heat of the steeplechase in 8:54.85, just qualifying. Bell was among 13 pole vaulters who qualified by clearing 16 feet, 6 inches.

He set a new world mark last week of 18-7¼, but he'll still have to beat Don Baird of Long Beach State, best in the British Commonwealth, and Russ Rogers of Southern California and Pac 8 champion Mike Tully of UCLA.

In the team chase, California led with 10 points as the result of its decathlon victory by Ed Miller earlier in the week. The decathlon is the only final held so far.

In Thursday's trials, however, Big Eight champion Kansas advanced a total of 11 athletes in seven events, Southern California seven in six. Tennessee, Auburn, Arizona State and Washington State each had survivors in five events. Texas-El Paso, the defending champion, was expected to show its strength in field events today and Saturday.

Giants sign Clemson star

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Receiver Craig Brantley of Clemson University has signed a contract with the New York Giants of the National Football League, school officials said Thursday. Terms were not disclosed.

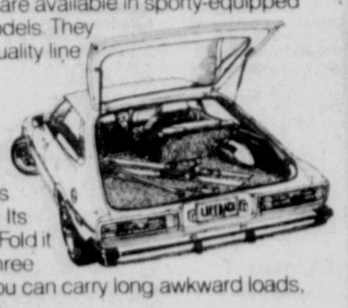

CONFIDENCE HELPED

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi State Basketball coach Kermit Davis says "It's downright unbelievable to think that we upset Kentucky." As an afterthought, Davis said senior Joe Dean had as much to do with the win as any player.

NEW TWO

Introducing two fun Toyotas that are incredibly functional. The new Corolla Liftback and Corolla Sport Coupe. Both have eye-stopping, sporty good looks inside and out. Both are available in sporty-equipped SR-5 and Deluxe models. They round out Toyota's quality line of Corollas.

Functional fun. We designed the Corolla Liftback to be stylishly sporty looking, and yet it's a practical car with two doors plus a wide rear liftback that opens into a spacious cargo area. Its versatility continues with a unique fold down split rear seat. Fold it all the way down and you've made enough room to hold three carts of groceries. Fold half the split rear seat down and you can carry long awkward loads, and there's still a seat left in the back to carry a passenger.

36 MPG HWAY 20 CITY

Economical to operate. The new Corolla SR-5 Liftback and Sport Coupe have a standard 5-speed overdrive transmission to give you great gas mileage and performance. 1976 California EPA tests with 5-speed overdrive transmission, 36 MPG highway, 20 city. These EPA results are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary, depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment. An automatic transmission is available on Deluxe models.

No-cost extras. Toyota has always been known to give you a long list of extras at no extra cost. The two new Corollas are no exceptions. Every Corolla is equipped with standard features like: reclining bucket seats, power assisted front disc brakes, MacPherson strut front suspension, transistorized ignition, styled steel wheels, and power boosted flo-thru ventilation, all included in the list price.

Toyota stands behind Toyota quality. There are nearly 1,000 authorized Toyota dealers across the U.S. comprising a network of service departments staffed with Toyota trained mechanics. Quality. You got it. The new generation of Corollas. If you can find a better-built small car than a Toyota...buy it!

Padgett resigns

RENO, Nev. (AP)— University of Nevada officials said they were surprised by head basketball coach Jim Padgett's announcement that he is retiring from coaching.

Padgett, 45, made his decision public Wednesday. He has been coaching 17 years, the last four at UNR. In his first season as Wolfpack mentor he was named West Coast Athletic conference coach of the year.

He began his career with the Air Force Academy in 1952. Since then he has guided junior high through major college teams. He joined the University of California basketball staff in 1965 and became head coach there in 1968. His lifetime record is 263-159. His UNR record was 43-61.

UNR athletic director Dick Trachok said he accepted Padgett's resignation with regret. It becomes effective June 30. He said he intends to go into private business in Reno.

Fans desert Chargers

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The newlook San Diego Chargers are offering "excellent seating arrangements. . .old friendship" in an effort to lure back 17,415 fans who refused to renew as season ticket holders.

Those are the 17,415 fans known by name to the National Football League club which they deserted in anger and anguish after 19 of 28 games were lost in 1974 and 1975.

"Dear old friend of the Chargers" begins a letter from Johnny Sanders, general manager.

"My purpose is to encourage you to renew the old friendship and join our team again."

The letter lists the 1976 home schedule and a few of the best young rookies on the team. And it says excellent seats are available, actually about 30,000 of them.

Most leagues using DH rule

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — President Bobby Bragan of the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues says 19 of 20 teams in NPA leagues this season are using the "Designated Hitter" rule. Only nonconformist is the American Assn.

In 1975, a total of 13 leagues used the DH. Five leagues did not use the rule permitting the DH to bat for the pitcher or another player.

RAPIDTRANSIT
Finally, a system that covers the county

It's up to you, now!

The rapid transit system Los Angeles needs is on the ballot June 8th, as two propositions: R and T. You can vote for them, and get started building an alternate to the freeways. Or you can sentence yourself to more freeway congestion that will get worse every year.

The Sunset Coast Line

Propositions R and T will finance the building and operation of a high-speed transit system to be called the Sunset Coast Line. It will cover 232 miles, 44 separate cities directly, and 80 percent of the homes in the county. And the lines will go where the people already have shown they want to go: Santa Monica, Long Beach and San Pedro, downtown L.A., the San Fernando and San Gabriel Valleys, the Airport, Pasadena, Pomona, Downey—in short, the Sunset Coast Line will tie together all the county's major population, recreation and work centers. It's the transit system Los Angeles needs.

End freeway congestion

This rapid transit plan is the best way to keep Los Angeles County's excellent freeway system flowing freely all the time. Right now, rush hour and weekend congestion has reached the point where quick fixes like Diamond Lanes and on-ramp metering are making matters worse, not better.

In fact, there is only so much we can ask our freeways to do. We must start now building the freeway alternate Los Angeles needs for the future.

Saving the land

One of the most exciting parts of the Sunset Coast Line plan is that it uses the existing freeway system as the base. The transit system will be built on, alongside, and over freeways, flood control channels and other land already publicly-owned, so no massive land-buying is needed. That saves money and will reduce negative environmental impact on our communities. (And engineers agree that even during construction no freeway lanes will have to be removed.)

Paying as we go

There's no mortgage with R and T. Though it will be one of the biggest construction jobs ever started, and though it will create tens of thousands of jobs, it's entirely pay as we go. There's no bonding, and no big interest payment to soak up tax dollars.

Building the Sunset Coast Line will be paid for with a one-cent increase in the sales tax. That's really what Propositions R and T are all about. Each in a one-half cent increase; one is for capital costs only, and the other is for some capital costs and for operations.

What it costs

There are dozens of ways to look at the cost, which clearly is substantial. One way is that the cost will be $283 million a year. Another is that construction over the next twenty years will cost just under $6 billion, in 1976 dollars. Inflation could double that figure, but the one cent sales tax escalates along with inflation. But perhaps the most meaningful way to look at the cost is what it will mean to each family.

On that basis, the cost turns out to be around $40 per year for an average family. About 10¢ per day for an average income family of four. Ten cents a day.

The best transit plan ever

Millions of dollars and engineering man-hours have gone into transit studies of one kind or another over the past thirty years. But no study has received as much scrutiny, then support, as has the Sunset Coast Line.

Respected engineering and financial consultants, urban planners and citizen groups have widely spoken in favor of the system you'll authorize by voting now for R and T. Such groups as the Sierra Club; Women For, County Federation of Labor, League of Women Voters, People's Lobby, and the American Institute of Architects have all come out in favor of this plan.

There are groups opposing it. Highway interests, generally, who want Los Angeles to stay locked into a cumbersome and expensive bus system, or into an increasingly crowded freeway-only system that just can't do the whole job.

No lanes will be removed from freeways to build the Sunset Coast Line.

The bottom line

The question of transit boils down to this: Are we willing to pay an extra penny on the sales tax for the best-planned, best-financed, best-designed system ever proposed?

Or do we want to sit back and wait for things to get worse? Building a good transit system will never cost less than right now.

That's why the Citizens' Committee for Rapid Transit is paying for this ad. We want you to have the facts. Because we know that when you do have the facts, you'll vote Yes for Propositions R and T for Rapid Transit on June 8th.

YES on R&T

ROLLING STONE

By RICH WISEMAN

VAN MORRISON, WE'RE GLAD to hear, is alive and well and issuing press releases. We got one the other day in which the attention-shy singer-songwriter said he's left the Bay Area to relocate outside London. Morrison, who's recorded but not released several albums worth of material in the last couple of years, said he's making the move "to get back to the roots . . . And that also is what's happening to my music as well. I'm getting back to . . . basic rock & roll stuff."

Morrison added that the recording project he'd undertaken in L.A. and San Francisco since the release of his last album, "Veedon Fleece" in 1974 could be offered "at a later date on a 'history of' sort of album."

JULY 4TH BOOKINGS: THE ROLLING STONES and SANTANA, the Los Angeles Coliseum; PETER FRAMPTON and GARY WRIGHT, Atlanta Stadium; the EAGLES AND FLEETWOOD MAC, Tampa Stadium or the Orange Bowl; ALICE COOPER, Michigan State Fairgrounds, Detroit; LYNYRD SKYNYRD and ZZ TOP, Memphis Memorial Stadium; JEFFERSON STARSHIP, Washington Park, Homewood, Illinois.

MICK JAGGER WAS one of ELTON JOHN'S backstage visitors at Earls Court in London recently. Mick, we hear, wanted to smooth over the rift that has existed between the ROLLING STONES and EJ, ever since Elton joined the Stones on stage for half of their Denver concert last summer; KEITH RICHARD was said to have felt that Elton had overstayed his welcome . . . John donated his $35,000 paycheck from the Earls Court show to the Sports Aid Foundation, a group that helps out Olympic trainees. Explained Elton: "I would like to see British sportsmen get better facilities. If we won a gold medal in the past, the guy has done it training in some backyard" . . . The release of Elton's "Here and There" album has meant an abrupt change of plans for LESLIE DUNCAN. Duncan, who duets with Elton on "Love Song" (which she wrote), had planned to retire to southwest England; now she has her own recording contract with MCA.

BROTHERS AND SISTERS: The ALLMAN BROTHERS BAND'S lead guitarist DICKIE BETTS married PAULETTE EGHAZARIAN May 16 at his farmhouse in Juliette, Ga. Paulette happens to be the personal secretary of CHER, who happens to still be married to GREGG ALLMAN . . . Gregg and Cher were among the guests at BERNIE TAUPIN's 26th birthday party May 22 at Le Restaurant in West Hollywood. Other well-wishers included ALICE COOPER, GLENN FREY and JOE WALSH of the EAGLES, GLEN CAMPBELL and RINGO STARR.

Taupin, who recently put out a book of song-poems called, "The One Who Writes the Words for Elton John," got a cake with the inscription, "For the One Who Eats the Words"; he also got a gold, crescent-shaped earring with tiny diamonds from Cher. Frey walked around praising the play of Walsh, the newest Eagle, on the group's album-in-progress, and Cooper walked around saying he'd gladly give up his next tour for a part in "A Chorus Line."

TWO OF SLY STONE'S former employees have filed suit against him in Marin, just north of San Francisco. Teru Kawaoka and Sergio Martinez, who respectively worked for Stone as a security person and a chauffeur-valet in 1974 and '75, charge that Stone owes them more than $10,000 in back wages and expenses.

Neither Kawaoka or Martinez, who are now living in Atlanta, could be reached for comment; Stone was likewise unavailable. The suit was filed on behalf of the pair by the state Division of Labor Standards Enforcement.

"THE TITLE OF THE ALBUM may have inspired them to get carried away," URIAH HEEP's KEN HENSLEY said of his management's launch of the group's latest album, "High and Mighty." He made the remark in "the world's highest revolving restaurant," the Piz Gloria, 10,000 feet up in the Swiss Alps. Some 50 British and European journalists were flown in for champagne and steak lunch. Afterwards the group posed for photos on a concrete ledge, where drummer LEE KERSLAKE added a touch of drama by slipping and almost falling to oblivion.

SPAIN AND AFRICA — Television actress Carmen Zapata, foreground, stars in "B-C," a new play by C. Bernard Jackson, opening next Friday at the Inner City Cultural Center, Los Angeles, for eight performances. The drama traces the relationship between peoples of African and Spanish descent from antiquity to modern times. Others featured, at rear, left to right, are Yolanda Marquez, Joaquin Martinez and Roger Brown. Academy Award nominee Beah Richards co-stars with Miss Zapata. Jackson directs the play.

ICCC to offer drama

"B-C," a new play by C. Bernard Jackson, will open next Friday at the Inner City Cultural Center for eight performances. The play stars Beah Richards and Carmen Zapata.

The final event of ICCC's current season, the drama spans three continents and 2,000 years of history as it traces the relationship between peoples of African and Spanish descent from antiquity to today.

Jackson also directs the piece. Featured players are Roger Brown, Gloria Calomee, Yolanda Marquez and Joaquin Martinez.

With this production, Miss Richards returns to the Los Angeles stage where she has received widespread acclaim for previous appearances in "The Amen Corner," "One Is a Crowd" and "A Black Woman Speaks," the last two at ICCC.

Winner of a 1976 Emmy for her adaptation of "A Black Woman Speaks" on KCET's "Innervisions" series, the distinguished actress has played leading roles in such films as "In the Heat of the Night," "The Great White Hope," "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" and "Mahogany" and on Broadway in "A Raisin in the Sun" and Mike Nichols' all-star production of "Little Foxes."

Miss Zapata is best known for her many guest starring roles on such television shows as 'Marcus Welby,' 'Medical Center,' 'Streets of San Francisco' and others. Her feature films include "Pete and Tillie" and the current "I Will! I Will! — For Now!" Twice nominated for an Emmy, she stars in her own series, 'Viva Valdez,' next season on ABC.

The limited "B-C" engagement includes performances at 8 p.m. next Friday and June 12, 13, 18, 19 and 20, with matinees at 2:30 p.m. on June 13 and 20.

Tickets priced at $5.50 ($3 students) are on sale at ICCC and all Mutual and Wallichs-Liberty agencies.

SAY 'CHEESE!' — Zero Mostel, starring in "Fiddler on the Roof" at the Shubert Theater, Los Angeles, hams it up for photographers when asked to watch the birdie at a press luncheon at the Jade West in Century City prior to the opening of the long-running musical.

Zero Mostel true to stage

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

"He's exactly like he is on stage," said pretty Terry Marz, hostess at the posh Jade West in Century City. "I'd have been so disappointed if he were different."

The "he" was actor-singer-commedian Zero Mostel whom Miss Marz met at a press luncheon Tuesday preceding Mostel's opening Wednesday night in "Fiddler on the Roof" at the Shubert Theater, Los Angeles.

Burly, boisterous, black-bearded and balding, the Brooklyn-born musicomedy star dominated the pushed-together tables where some 25 reporters and columnists sat. He was warm, witty and raucous, exploding with anecdotes, irreverent observations and reminiscences of his career. Clad in a dark-blue futigue suit with shoulder straps and brass buttons, a lurid red shirt and small black tie, he looked like a cross between a French customs inspector and a supernumerary in "Die Fledermaus."

Mostel originated the classic role of Tevye the dairyman in "Fiddler" on Broadway and has played it in other productions.

"I do it every few years," he said. "It breaks out on me like eczema."

The Shubert opening is the start of a 25-week national tour that will take the long-running musical to 11 cities. Advance sales are heartening.

"I like to get out on the road," Mostel said, munching Chinese food. ("What's a nice Jewish boy like me doing in a Chinese restaurant?) When I get to a new city I have a great time — I go to the museums, the theaters, the art galleries."

Art is another love of Mostel's. He is a skilled and sensitive painter whose work hangs in the permanent collections of many of the leading galleries in the country. Does his art affect his acting?

"Moneywise, my acting helps my painting," Mostel said with a chuckle. Then more seriously, "Of course it does. The two arts support each other. And I find similarities in expression — I use few gestures and movements on the stage and my painting is similarly restrained."

Mostel was born Samuel Joel Mostel, but he did so poorly in P.S. 188 that his friends called him "Zero."

"I was a laugher, didn't take school seriously," Mostel recalled. "When I stood up to recite, the other kids would say 'Here comes Zero'. The name stuck."

Mostel has a place on an island off Maine, but his home is in Central Park West, New York City. ("To me it feels like the Bronx.")

"I'm a walker," he said. "There's no place to walk in Los Angeles. I walk all over in New York. I've never been mugged, but I've been kissed a couple of times."

The rotund actor claims he knew "Fiddler" would be a smash hit from the start. (It is the longest running show in the history of Broadway.)

"I knew it was great right away," Mostel said, grinning. "At the opening night — a benefit — the only Jew in the house was me, and I was on stage. And the guidance CRIED! Because, you know, you Christians have a lot of guilt."

Future plans? "I'd like to do some day 'Falstaff'," he said, "It needs a new approach. I've had an offer from the Stratford (England) company."

However, Mostel will star in London next season in "The Merchant," a new play by Arnold Wesker. And then, presumably, he'll wait for an outbreak of his eczema, "Fiddler."

"Any more questions?" Mostel asked, getting to his feet and wiping the soy sauce from his chin. "Then, gentlemen, thank you very much for coming. I leave you with the check!"

OFF TO SCHOOL — "Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids," popular children's comedy-education television program, will be shown in schools throughout the country starting this fall. The CBS animated series is being marketed by McGraw-Hill firms for use in kindergarten through third grade.

'Fat Albert' goes to school

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A television series your children now watch for fun may soon be shown in their classrooms for education.

The show is "Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids," an animated series that has been part of the CBS Saturday daytime lineup for the past four years.

It will be back in the fall, too, but in addition eight episodes that already have been aired are being marketed to school districts around the country by McGraw-Hill Films for use in kindergarten through third grade classes beginning in September.

Ed Meell, editorial director for McGraw-Hill Films, says that as far as he knows this is the first time a commercial television series, as opposed to public television's "Sesame Street," has been put to use in schools.

That "Fat Albert" fits the bill should come as no surprise to anyone who has seen the show. From the outset it successfully has merged education with entertainment, and it helped change the nature of children's commercial television by leading the way in bringing in professional educators to consult on each episode.

Based on characters invented by Bill Cosby, "Fat Albert" features a group of black kids who live in the ghetto and each week get involved in situations that are designed to convey information and prosocial values to the audience.

The episodes being offered to schools, for instance, deal with such topics as drugs, lying, stereotyping, making new friends, going to the hospital and accepting personal limitations.

"That's the beauty of this series," says Meell. "Each one of these topics are things kids face every day. And the idea is brought out without preaching. They can discuss it afterward and be able to identify very, very well."

Teaching guides to help instructors develop such discussions also are being distributed by McGraw-Hill. They were prepared by the chief consultant for "Fat Albert," Gordon L. Berry, assistant dean of UCLA's graduate school of education.

Norm Prescott and Lou Scheimer, who run Filmation Studios and produce "Fat Albert" along with many other children's shows, are elated to see the program put to such use.

Opera tickets on sale

Season tickets to the New York City Opera season at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center Nov. 17-Dec. 12 are on sale to July 1 at the box office.

Series tickets insure priority seating, assigned in order of receipt. Five 5-opera series tickets are offered.

Single tickets will go on sale for all 28 performances, including an opera gala performance on opening night, in mid-August when the Music Center Opera Association will publish a single-sale brochure. Series ticketholders retain priority seating opportunities for additional performances.

New productions of Offenbach's "La Belle Helene," Rossini's "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" and Wagner's "Der Fliegende Hollander" are included in the repertory, which consists of 12 operas. Others are "La Boheme," "Turandot," "La Traviata," "The Makropoulos Affair," "Die Fledermaus," "Carmen," "Madame Butterfly," "Rigoletto" and "H.M.S. Pinafore."

Movie set on Kingfish

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Huey Long, the famed Kingfish of American politics of the 1930s, will be the subject of a film biography from Warner Brothers.

The studio announced that Jerry Bick will produce and Ulu Grosbard will direct a film based on the biography "Huey Long" by T. Harry Williams. Alvin Sargent is writing a screen play on the life of the Louisiana senator who proposed a share-the-wealth plan and was assassinated in 1935.

The Long legend has been treated twice before in films.

Simon writes movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Neil Simon, whose "The Sunshine Boys" won a supporting-actor Oscar for George Burns, returns to MGM with a new comedy, "Goodbye Girl."

The prolific Simon, whose new play "California Suite" is in its pre-Broadway tryout here, has written an original screenplay that will be co-produced by MGM and Warner Brothers.

Ray Stark will produce "Goodbye Girl," for which a new title may be sought.

Trumbull to work on film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Special effects expert Douglas Trumbull has been signed by producers Julia Phillips and Michael Phillips to supply photographic effects for "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

Steven Spielberg ("Jaws") is directing the Columbia film with Richard Dreyfuss as star. Trumbull produced effects for "2001: A Space Odyssey" and "The Andromeda Strain." He also directed his own film, "Silent Running," a science fiction movie starring Bruce Dern.

What does the title of the new film mean? The producers explain close encounters of the first kind are "sighting of objects" The second kind: "contracts with the objects." The third kind: "Contracts between the species."

PLANNING MISCHIEF — Simon Stoneheart, far left, plots trouble for the hero, Ruff Righter, astride his horse and surrounded by friends. The scene is from the melodrama "Wings of Fame," playing at the Gaslight Theater at Busch Gardens in Van Nuys. The park, offering rides, shows and musical attractions, will be open daily from 10 a.m. to midnight starting June 19.

Katharine Hepburn will open the 10th anniversary season for the Center Theater Group at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center Oct. 13 in a new comedy, "A Matter of Gravity," by Enid Bagnold.

Another highlight of the 1976-1977 season will be Charlton Heston starring in Eugene O'Neill's Pulitzer Prize-winning drama, "Long Day's Journey Into Night," to be directed by Peter Wood.

A third production, starring Richard Thomas, will be the romantic comedy, "Merton of the Movies," by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly. Burt Shevelove, director of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and "No, No Nanette," will direct.

"A Matter of Gravity," marks Miss Hepburn's first appearance on the Los Angeles stage since her sell-out performances in "Coco." The only actress to have won three Best Actress Academy Awards, Miss Hepburn will reprise her role in the contemporary comedy that delighted audiences last season on Broadway.

With "Long Day's Journey into Night," Academy Award-winning Heston will be making his third starring appearance at the Ahmanson, having set house records in previous productions of "The Crucible" and "Macbeth."

Wood directed the television adaptation of "Long Day's Journey" starring Laurence Olivier.

Since his critically acclaimed performance at the Ahmanson as the Dauphin in "Saint Joan," Thomas, the Emmy Award-winning star of The Waltons on television, has emerged as a poet and a television director.

EASE ON DOWN — Dorothy (Ren Woods), the Scarecrow (Valentino) and the Tin Woodman (Ben Harney) ease on down the yellow brick road in "The Wiz," opening a 13-week engagement at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center June 15. "The Wiz," award-winning musical version of "The Wizard of Oz," is an offering of the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera.

SPDJ to hear Sammy

Saxophonist Sammy (Hi Ho Silver) Lee, recently back from his third European tour with the Louisiana Shakers, will be guest star at a meeting of the Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz-East at the Riverside Elks Lodge, 5797 Picker St., at 2 p.m. June 13.

Guests at the meeting will be parents and members of the Riverside all-star Pony League baseball team which has been invited to tour Japan this summer, playing Japanese teams of comparable caliber. The society will supply a free band to perform at a dance to which the Riverside team will sell tickets to raise funds for the trip.

The SPDJ-E meeting is a five-hour jam session with a different group taking the stage each half hour. Lee is scheduled to appear at 3:30 p.m.

The meeting is open to the public. Visiting musicians are welcome to perform.

'Jaws' sequel slated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was inevitable: "Jaws II."

Universal announces the sequel to the biggest money-making film of all-time will be filmed next Spring at Martha's Vineyard, site of the original. Movie goers can expect to be chilled in 1978.

'Dinah!'

Shore enough

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Dinah!" the daily variety-talk show starring Dinah Shore, has been renewed for a third season.

The five CBS-owned television channels have contracted for another year. The show also appears in 120 market areas in the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Hong Kong.

Miss Shore will also be starring in a summer replacement show for Carol Burnett this summer.

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

And there they were, acting like a pair of kids; cutting up on the dance floor to the music of Lou Dokken at Orlando's last Saturday night. They told me they don't really know how to dance, but you'd never know it by watching Ken and Ruth Payne of Chino, winner of a free dinner in connection with last month's Progress Bulletin restaurant survey.

"As long as there's some kind of beat," said Ruth, "we'll dance to it." And dance they did — waltz, fox trot, cha, cha, rock. And dance they do — three nights a week! "We like The Timbers, and The Trails in Duarte," said Ruth, "and we really like the boys at The Younger Bros. We go there on their Oldies Nights."

I need to say right here that this survey business with the free meals started innocently enough, but I didn't reckon on the Payne's turning the tables on me and inviting me to Orlando's as THEIR guest while I dined them courtesy the Prog! Anyway, Saturday night was a memorable evening for me. We all had a great time and made some new friends. The meal was very good, the service ala waitress Sherrie Guthrie was excellent, and the dancing was fun.

The Saturday night Supper Club idea in Orlando's Royal Crest room is a neat entertainment package, particularly for special occasions. Last Saturday night I noticed parties for birthdays, anniversaries and a wedding with music appropriate to the occasion by the Dokken combo. Some people come from some distance, drawn by the music and dancing (dance floor has been enlarged since my last visit.) One couple comes out from Los Angeles every week!

A new option for dancing has been added to the Valley scene this week with the opening of the Rathskeller, new downstairs nightclub at the Magic Lamp Inn in Cucamonga. The new club offers the soft rock sounds of "Gemini" six nights a week. And, something different, dancing starts at 8 pm weeknites and 7 pm on weekends, earlier than most places. Original owner of the Lamp, Frank Penn, never did have entertainment, but new ownership has brought new ideas and new life to this distinctive restaurant on Foothill Blvd.

Last Friday night I decided to take a break from rock (as their ad suggests) and check out the entertainment at Elli's Lounge in Pomona.

King Perry was doing his thing when I arrived, and I found his soft and low style easy to take and very danceable. He knows his business on the organ and his vocals are very adequate. And through judicious use of the only two hands he has, he plays the saxophone, too, while accompanying himself on the organ. The sax adds a nice dimension to his music and the crowd at Elli's seems to approve of the sounds this mellow man brings to the place. King plays there Tues. thru Sat. evenings. Elli's Lounge is located at 1250 E. Mission.

Mingo Herrera, owner of Mingo's Mexican restaurant, 1190 E. Mission, Pomona, is starting to sell tamales by the dozens, literally. They are available on take-out only, and the cost is $4.00 a dozen.

Mingo has been getting into the take-out business more and more (½ price Menudo has been good seller) because he has limited seating capacity at his little place. The food there is apparently good, but some people have been discouraged because they can't find a place to sit. So Mingo's trying to solve this by offering take-out specials. So next time you're by Mingo's and there's no place to sit, think take-out.

I understand from Ralph Hicks, owner of the Ponderosa Club in Pomona, that a country music TV show will originate from his place this Sunday afternoon. The hour-long show, the first in a planned series, will feature several top country music stars in addition to Pomona's Donnie Rhors and Billy Webb. Other artists scheduled to appear on the show include Eddie Dean, Hank Penny, Howdy Glen, Billy Mize, Tex Williams and Linda Peace. If you're interested in getting in on the taping of the show, call Ralph at 623-9200 for ticket information.

As often as I can, I get over to Cat & Fiddle to listen to the music. I like the sounds Buzz Siler and Phil Williams make, but the other night, listening to Phil, I became aware that something was amiss. No one was dancing! Now at the Cat & Fiddle, this is unusual. It was as if the people there were waiting for something special to happen. They didn't have to wait long. Tim Morgan came on and promptly filled the dance floor. This is Tim's last week there, by the way. If you haven't heard him yet, try to stop by. Good entertainers.

Now that my No. 2 son is home for the summer, some of his friends are dropping in occasionally (all under 21 years of age.) They all seem to have the same question of me, as if Wandering Woody will surely know of a club where they can go to dance. They are barred from most clubs because of liquor regulations, and I know of no under-age club in our area. Do you? "Wondering Willie" wants to know.

JOHNNY WONDER

The fins of all fish help them to swim, but the fins of the flying fish also help it to fly. Flying fish live in the warm, tropical seas.

This fish has large front fins which can be spread like the wings of a glider. The flying fish doesn't fly through the air by flapping its "wings" like a bird does.

It simply glides above the surface of the water, sometimes for several hundred feet before it drops back into the ocean. The flying fish gets into the air by swimming rapidly through the water. When it is moving at top speed, it swoops up out of the water, stretches out its large fins and sails through the air like a glider. Often it will taxi along the surface by propelling itself with its tail to pick up more speed while in flight. The flying fish does not fly for pleasure. Usually, it flies only as a means of escape when pursued by dolphins, tuna and other large predators that hunt flying fish.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Joyce Brothers

Surrogate mother

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My wife had a nervous breakdown and had to be institutionalized shortly after the birth of our only baby. At that time we lived a great distance from my wife's mother so we hired a wonderful, sensitive woman. She has been with us for 18 months and is really the only mother my daughter has known. My mother-in-law is moving to our area and will be able to take over. I don't want to insult her by declining her help, but I'd be more comfortable keeping the woman we have. — J.H.

Dear J.H.: Grandmothers can, and do, contribute much to small children, but under the circumstances you describe, I believe it is important to keep the woman who has cared for your baby from infancy. My judgment has nothing whatever to do with your mother-in-law as an individual but is based on studies that indicate the need for consistency in the first three or four years of a child's life.

The woman you hired has become a surrogate mother for your child. Even if your wife were now to be released in good health, I feel it would still be very important for your child's emotional well-being to continue the relationship with this woman until your daughter is at least three years old.

When the mother, or a strong mother figure is missing during these early years, the child is apt to be emotionally impoverished later. What is most needed in a child's life is repetition, the knowledge that the same face is going to appear and that it can be counted on. Your daughter has established a bond with this woman and it shouldn't be broken at this crucial time.

The grandmother should be allowed to be a grandmother but not a substitute mother. In this way she can help be a bridge for future change.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm 73 and I am afraid of becoming senile. I'd like help with my problems, especially certain fears I have, like being in small rooms or in elevators. But I've heard psychiatrists don't take people over 60 because they think they're too old to be helped. There are things I'd like to do but I'm afraid people will reject me because of my age. Have you any suggestions? — N.Y.

Dear N.Y.: I believe we have to be willing to risk rejection if we are to make progress in our lives. Unfortunately, there is a great deal of prejudice in this country but people of every age can help to destroy and combat the stereotypes about aging if they will speak out against them wherever they encounter them.

The fear of senility is quite common because people don't realize that senility isn't inevitable. The great majority of people in their 70s and 80s are not senile. Dr. Richard Shader and Dr. Carl Salzman of Harvard recently completed a three-year study which revealed that memory loss and senility in the elderly is often caused by depression.

When depression strikes the elderly it is commonly a response to stressful situations in their lives. One way to overcome feelings of frustration, anxiety and low self-esteem is to keep in close contact with others who share similar problems. In most communities there are active senior citizens groups that offer advice.

Older people like yourself can be given help with psychiatric aid. You're certainly not too old and there are good professionals eager to be of help.

MAPMA unit conference set

The Mexican American Personnel and Manpower Association will sponsor the first in a series of mini-conferences in the field of employment.

The Thursday conference "Women in Employment-A Changing Scene," will be held at the Convention Center in San Bernardino from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Keynote speaker for the conference will be Irene Tovar, a member of the State Personnel Board. Other speakers will include Elba Montes, Women's Bureau, U.S. Department of Labor; Phil Valenzuela, San Bernardino County Personnel; Lois Carson, director of Upward Bound at UC Riverside; and Sally Martinez, Equal Employment Opportunity officer with Southern California Edison.

The conference will include two workshops, one dealing with career development models, and the second focusing on barriers women encounter at various levels of employment and the special problems of minority women.

The conference will be limited to 300 participants, so an early registration is suggested. Registration fee of $5 is required and can be mailed to MAPMA at P.O. Box 5933 San Bernardino, CA 92410.

Employers wishing to send more than one employe to the conference will be offered a special rate.

Amaranth activity scheduled

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cox of Pomona will preside at 1975 Night for Della Robbia Court, Order of the Amaranth, at Upland Masonic Temple on Monday.

The Coxes are junior past royal matron and royal patron and Mrs. Cox is president of the 1975 Amaranth Association of Southern California. All stations will be filled by their 1975 associate officers from throughout Southern California.

Mrs. Ione Allcock, junior past grand royal matron, of Squaw Valley, and Fred Tillmannshofer, junior past grand patron, of Santa Rosa, will be honored guests.

A dime-a-dip dinner at 6 p.m. for members and friends will precede the 8 p.m. meeting.

Running out

Are we running out of animals? Author James A. Michener says it's a possibility. Writing in the June Digest, he notes that the animal population started a serious decline soon after the arrival of man. Since 1900 one species of bird or mammal has disappeared every year, and Michener feels an exploding human population will hasten the animal rate of extinction.

Couple says vows in home ceremony

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Refugio Palafox in La Verne was the setting for the marriage of Miss Nancy Palafox of La Verne to David Lopez of Pomona. The couple was married by the Rev. Thomas Patterson in an afternoon garden ceremony followed by a reception in the bride's home.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Regugio Palafox of La Verne.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Andrade of Pomona.

Miss Betty Palafox of La Verne was her sister's honor attendant. Serving as best man was Javier Cruz of Pomona.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Anaheim and are now at home in Oceanside.

The bridegroom is a paratrooper for the Marines and is stationed at Camp Pendleton. The bride is a 1975 graduate of Bonita High School.

Area group to display its examples

The San Gabriel Valley Cactus and Succulent Society will display 500 examples of succulents Saturday and Sunday at the Huntington Botanical Gardens.

The show will include dish gardens and succulent Bonsai as well as rare North and South American cacti and South African succulents. Members of the Society will be on hand to answer questions and to demonstrate potting and grafting.

Succulents are plants which have adapted to hostile conditions primarily by storing water in their leaves or stems. Many have spines to ward off predators; others have acrid or poisonous sap. A wide range of colors, and waxy or wooly coverings protect them from intense light.

The cactus and succulent plants are hardy, desert survivors. But in their season, they blossom with crowns or sprays or stalks of flowers. The Huntington Desert Garden is blooming now. Visitors will see South American puyas with masses of exotic bluish-green or chartreuse flowers on tall stalks, or the crown of thorns with its delicate red blooms, and many other varieties of interesting plants.

The cactus and Succulent Show will be presented on the Loggia of the Art Gallery from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The Huntington is located at 1151 Oxford Road, San Marino. Admission is free.

Strong fiber

Tamarack trees have roots with such strong fibers that Indians used them to sew together pieces of birch bark to make canoes.

Do-it-yourself

A pond in your own backyard

By Steve Ellingson

It's a waterfall! It's a fish pond! It's a fountain! Here's a way to bring a nature retreat into everyone's life. If you're always longing to get away from the city to the soothing sounds of the babbling brook (but would rather not fight the traffic every weekend to do it), here's a way to bring the great outdoors to your doorsteps.

Our complete do-it-yourself plans tell you how to save some real money by building your own three-in-one conversation piece. Step-by-step pictures and instructions guide you all the way, from digging to final coat. The pond pictured here measures 4 feet by 16 feet and holds 300 gallons of water. However, you can make it any size you want. Guidelines for filtering and draining the pond are in the instructions. A list of the tools you will need for the project is also included.

To obtain the easy-to-follow instructions for creating our 508 waterfall-fishpond-fountain, send $2.50 (includes first class postage and handling) by cash, check or money order to: Steve Ellingson, Pomona Progress-Bulletin Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2382, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

How to avoid garden errors

By ALLAN and SHEILA SWENSON
NEA Garden Columnists

Millions more families took spade in hand and went gardening last year. Unfortunately, there were problems. And usually, the blame was placed on poor seeds.

Actually, the seeds available today are of better quality, purity and trueness to variety than ever before. There are many other overlooked conditions that generally account for gardening failures. If you had problems, here's how to avoid them this year.

Plant seed at the proper depth. If too deep, seeds don't have strength to push seedlings to the surface. If too shallow, birds may peck them out or a sudden rain may wash seeds away.

Of course, check the date stamped on the seed packet. Packets must include the weight, or approximate count, the year for which they are packed and the estimated germination. Germination tests are conducted by seed producers. When the seeds are sent to stores or in the mail, they will give good results — providing you plant them correctly.

Sometimes it seems easy to put some garden soil in pots indoors and plant seeds. That way it is possible to get a jump on spring, transplanting outdoors later when danger of frost is over. But, there may be disease organisms in average garden soil.

Most common is "damping off" disease. If you see a fuzzy white growth on the soil and dead seedlings, it is most likely damping off doing the dirty work. To avoid it, use sterilized seed starting mix or the handy Jiffy 7 peat pots, or similar starting units.

All reliable gardening guides advise waiting until soil is well warmed in spring before planting most seeds outdoors. There's good reason for this caution. A late frost can kill tender seedlings in one night.

Also, late spring rains may keep soil soggy. That can rot seeds and seedling roots. Plants, like people, enjoy a happy, sunny, warm environment in which to grow.

You can give seedlings and transplants protection the first few days or weeks outdoors. Hotcaps or covers made from gallon plastic milk cartons with bottoms removed are useful. Place these over tender tomatoes, broccoli, peppers, eggplant, squash each evening. Remove in the morning so the sun gets to the plants. That extra protection lets seedlings set strong roots, warm up well and really grow.

Food, water for hedges

If you have a privet hedge to care for, it can be made to do better with ample food and water. Examples of happy hedges are those on the edge of a lawn which are regularly fed and watered. Use a complete fertilizer now and again in mid-summer. Water hedges deeply this season to make up for the lack of rainfall this past winter.

Root balls can be remedied

Potted plants that have spent many months in a pot are likely to have tight root balls which resist water penetration. Water runs down between root ball and pot and out the bottom. An occasional soaking in a bucket of water will remedy this. Once the root ball is thoroughly moistened, it is easier to keep that way through normal watering practices.

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I understand it is possible to use dry ice in the removal of resilient floor tiles. Can you tell me how this is done?

A. — Yes, but first a word of caution. The dry ice must be handled very carefully. Have the dealer where you purchase it tell you how this should be done. The dry ice is placed into a wooden frame which is set on the tile and left there a few minutes. Using a hammer, chip out the tile, then move the frame and repeat the operation as many times as is needed. There are several other methods of removing floor tiles. Probably the safest — although it requires the most elbow grease — is to rent a tile scraper, a kind of giant putty knife. Insert the scraper between the seams of two adjoining tiles and force it downward and slightly sideways until one of the tiles is loosened a bit. From then on it's a case of scraping off the tiles and adhesive as you might scrape peeling paint from the side of a house.

Q. — Please settle an argument. Is it necessary to use a sealer over a wood stain if the final finish is to be varnish?

A. — The word "necessary" makes a flat yes or no difficult. It may not be necessary, since I have seen some finishing projects where the sealer was not used, but my own preference is for use of the sealer. When the final coat is to be varnish, I use a coat of shellac diluated 50 per cent with denatured alcohol. However, if you have already purchased the varnish, read the label carefully to see whether the manufacturer has made any specific recommendation about the type of sealer, if any, to be used over a stain. That's because there are so many different kinds of varnish on the market these days it is important to read the instructions about the compatibility of one product with another.

George Colouris: the man and his show

He may be short on eyesight — but he's long on vision!

Although 95 per cent blind, George Colouris, producer of the Los Angeles Home and Garden Show at the Los Angeles Convention Center, now through June 13, continues to overcome his handicap with continuing success in his business ventures.

His third annual Home and Garden expo — is more comprehensive than ever. Example: A score of novel and unique floral displays by several of Southern California's prestigious garden-club members.

Much of Colouris' success in producing trade shows in the U.S. and Canada, including the re-nowned Southland Home and Garden Show in Anaheim for more than two decades, can be attributed to his constant companion and wife, Kae.

In effect, Kae is his "eyes" . . . his "right hand" . . . his inspiration for striving ever onward in his trade-show ventures. She works closely with him, but George makes all decisions.

Kae boasts an unusual background for such a successful business woman. She's a former moppet in the famous Our Gang comedies of yesteryear.

Both are of Greek heritage. And wouldn't you know it? They first met at a Greek wedding in Pasadena!

Many persons born blind accept their misfortune passively. Not George. Born and raised in Fillmore, he determined to make his own way without any but absolutely essential aid from others. Example: Urged to enroll in the Berkeley School for the Blind, he refused, "I rejected the sugestion instantly," he recalls. "I did need 'readers' while attending Ventura Junior College and for a period, too, at UCLA."

World War II took him from the classroom by his own choice to aiding the war effort. He worked for a foundation in Pasadena, contacting industry executives and selling them on employing blind and visually-impaired persons. He was honored for his efforts.

Colouris was so successful that it eventually launched him on a "sales" career of his own — persuading manufacturers to exhibit products in his personally-produced trade shows.

"That war-time job made me ralize I could sell big business," Colouris recalls. "So I took the big plunge not long after war's end — and I've never had cause to regret it."

Nor should he. His long history of producing trade and consumer expositions is impressive.

Want to get a window unjammed?

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The upper and lower sashes of a double hung window get stuck every so often, refusing to budge even when the strongest member of the family is pressed into action.

It is at this point that someone usually produces a screwdriver and proceeds to insert it between the sash and the inside moulding. Quite often, the sash is worked loose in this manner, followed quickly by the discovery that the blade of the screwdriver has caused a series of gouges and other conspicuous marks that are difficult to disguise or repair.

What should have been used instead of a screwdriver is one of the thin-edged chisels used by floor mechanics and glaziers. Since most persons have no such chisel in their workshop, a putty knife will do the job almost as well. Insert the blade of the knife into the opening and gently move it up and down. This will break the paint seal that is the usual cause of a stuck window. Work slowly and carefully. Try the window now and then to see whether it can be moved. If not, don't force it. After the seal has been broken in a few places, your eye will tell you where the window is still stuck and where to go to work again with the putty knife.

Sometimes, when a window can be reached easily from the outside, this procedure accomplishes quick results, except that the putty knife is inserted under the bottom of the lower sash and, when possible, at the top of the upper sash.

If the window frame itself has warped the window may be stuck because of this rather than hardened paint. There are three ways to tackle this. The first is to place a block of wood in the groove above the lower sash and tap it with a hammer. The piece of wood should fit snugly into the groove so that, when it is tapped, it tends to expand the frame and free the window. If that doesn't work, use the same block of wood to place against the vertical parts of the sash and tap it with a hammer as you move it up and down.

The last-resort method is to remove the moulding that forms the front edge of the sash groove. Slide the putty knife blade under the moulding and work it carefully until the nails can be taken out with a claw hammer. Sand the sliding parts as much as necessary, wipe with a lubricant and replace the moulding.

Much of the trouble with stuck windows can be prevented if you apply a lubricant or wax to the edges of the sashes and the sliding grooves once or twice a year.

Daisies add color to landscape

Pert daisies, and cheerful look-alikes, add color to the landscape all through the summer. They can be used in large, colorful mass display, to fill narrow beds, combined in borders with shrubs or displayed by themselves in a perennial flower border.

Some highly recommended perennials (plants that overwinter from year to year) for high-lighting the summer garden are Marguerites, Transvaal Daisies, Felicia, or Euryops (African Daisies).

The distinctive flower and exquisite colors of the Transvaal Daisy are but two of its popular assets. The single-flowering and double forms come in several shades of yellow, cream, white, pink, coral, rose, orange and red. The newer, intensely colored hybrid varieties feature flowers that measure four inches, or more, across. They provide continuous color, from early spring to early winter.

Plant in full sun or partial shade in an area protected from wind. The crown of the plant should be above soil after planting.

Glistening yellow and white Marguerites with flowers that all but smother the shrub make excellent potted plants as well as garden accents in borders. They form good-sized mounds in sunny locations and can be used as a flowering hedge.

A little shopping will reveal a Blue Marguerite. This daisy is actually a Felicia, and sports shrubby growth that is low and compact. The daisylike flowers come in an appealing shade of sky-blue. Felicia makes an excellent edging around permanent plantings.

The African Daisy, or Euryops, is another daisy-like flowered shrub. It's grayish-green foliage and deep yellow flowers are able to thrive in gusty ocean winds, but do need some protection from heavy frosts. Established plants are fairly drought resistant, while displaying a long and spectacular blooming season.

Any of the daisy delights mentioned here are sure to please whether in containers or part of the garden. And, don't forget, the flowers make beautiful summertime bouquets.

DAZZLERS — Marguerites require little attention and produce a dazzling carnival of color in the garden many moths of the year. Besides highlighting the landscape with continuous bloom, Marguerites — in white, yellow and even pink — can be used in portable containers or featured in unique planting situations for breathtaking effect.

Gardeners check list

Pinch back annual flowers to make them branch-out at the side. The result is sturdier plants and much more bloom.

Pelargoniums and geraniums can be planted in full bloom, from nursery containers. Choose a sunny spot.

In pruning hedges give them a slight pyramidal shape so that the lower leaves are exposed to plenty of sunlight. This keeps the hedge full and green.

June planted fuchsias will make a big splash of color in hanging baskets. Shade from hot summer sun and pinch the tips of new growth frequently to make plants bushy and full with new flowering wood.

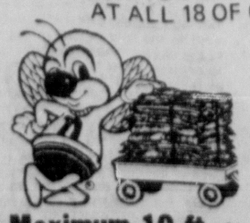

Rooted 'mums now available

Rooted Chrysanthemum cuttings are available in nurseries this month. For a fine show this fall, plant plenty of 'mums now. They are easily transplanted from paks or small pots. Pinch back the tops at the time of planting to promote bushy plants.

GARBAGE HOUSE — Debbie Jones, a senior majoring in architecture at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, carries newspaper cores past the "garbage house" that she and six other students are making from the cores of newspaper rolls, metal strapping and 16-ounce bottles. The class project was bought by a professor for $600 before the first core was in place. The 600-square-foot house will contain two rooms, plus kitchen and a bath.

Dam construction slowing in state

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California probably will need very few new dams between now and the year 2000 despite this year's record drought, the state's top water official says.

Ronald Robie, director of the Department of Water Resources, made that prediction in an interview last week about the fact the state is going through its third driest year in this century.

"I would predict we won't need an awful lot more dams through the year 2000. Growth is slowing down in the state. Water use is slowing down because of water conservation of various kinds.

"We are getting trends like more high rises which use less water.... I see very few new dams in the next 25 years over and above the ones already underway, like Auburn and New Melones," said Robie.

Robie, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s appointee who characterizes himself as a "minimum dam" man, said that traditional dam supporters used a dry year like this to call for "six more dams."

But Robie, who was also Gov. Ronald Reagan's appointee to head the State Water Resources Control Board, said he favored studying all other alternatives first, such as water reclamation projects.

"There are now over 50 major federal, state and locally operated dams in the state. But in this year, for example, many dams in the Central Valley area have 20 to 60 per cent their normal water.

"Dams have made a big difference. This is the first dry year of this magnitude when we have had the State Water Project, and that has made us reasonable secure. We're not panicking," Robie said.

At the same time, however, he said he favored "slowing down the demand for new projects if you can find existing supplies you can use instead."

"The main problem with this is in the past dams were built before people had a clear idea of what the water would be used for. Mainly, that was the federal government," he said.

California agriculture, which uses the bulk of the state's water supplies, does need more water Robie said, and the state and federal government are looking at a proposed San Joaquin Valley project.

State weather predictions next year indicate it will be normal or wet, Robie said. But in the meantime, this is the driest year since the droughts of 1924 and 1931.

"I hope the dry year will be a lesson to everyone that you can have problems, and people should get accustomed to using less water on a regular basis.

"Certainly we have emphasized conservation more than it was emphasized in the past. The drought has been convenient in that respect — focusing on the need for water conservation."

Robie said Californians should get used to being frugal with water and should avoid doing things like washing down their sidewalks with the hose.

"Otherwise, you are just pushing sooner in the future the need for more water projects."

NOTICE INVITING BIDS FOR CASH CONTRACT NO. 2431 GRAND AVENUE (Walnut Area)

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Road Commissioner of the County of Los Angeles, in Room 180, 1540 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033, until 9:30 a.m. on June 15, 1976; and then will be publicly opened and read in Room 193 at the above address for the construction of curb, gutter, walls, drainage structures, base and pavement, riprap, fence work, landscape work, traffic signal work, removals, earthwork and other incidental and appurtenant work, estimated to cost less than $1,400,000, all in accordance with the provisions of the Plans, Specifications, Notices and Instructions to Bidders therefor which are on file and open for inspection at the offices of the Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department.

The contractor to whom this contract is awarded will be required, before execution of the contract by the County Board of Supervisors, to file with the County Board of Supervisors surety bonds as follows:

A "Faithful Performance Bond" amounting to 100% of the total contract price is required for all contracts.

A "Payment Bond" (labor and material) amounting to 50% of the total contract price is required for all contracts which have a total contract price in excess of $10,000.

The Engineer may, from time to time, and without Board approval, issue addenda to the contract documents during the period of advertising for bids, for the following purposes: (a) revising Prevailing Wage Scales, (b) clarifying or correcting special provisions, plans or bid proposal; provided however that any such addenda shall not change the original scope and intent of the project.

Purchasers of contract documents shall be notified of, and furnished with copies of, such addenda, either by certified mail or personal delivery, during the period of advertising.

Proposal must be submitted on forms prepared and furnished for the purpose, which may be obtained at the Information Desk in the lobby of the Los Angeles County Road Department Administration Building, 1540 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033 at which office bidders may also purchase copies of the Plans and Specifications for the contemplated work for the price of $7.08 plus Sales Tax per set, not refundable. A mail address and a phone number must be left at the aforementioned office which the prospective bidder agrees is sufficient to reach him.

Each submitted proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a surety bond, payable to the County of Los Angeles in an amount equivalent to at least ten (10) percent of the total aggregate bid price of such proposal, as a guaranty that the bidder, if his proposal be accepted, will enter into and execute the awarded contract, and furnish the required bonds in connection therewith, in accordance with the terms of the aforementioned Specifications.

In the event that a surety bond is submitted in leiu of a check, it shall be subject to the condition that the surety thereon be approved by the County Auditor and County Counsel. Surety bond shall be signed by a guaranty or surety company listed in the latest issue of the U. S. Treasury Circular 570.

The Board of Supervisors reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and to waive technical errors and discrepancies, if to do so seems to best serve the interests of the County.

The County hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively insure that in any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement, minority business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation and will not be discriminated against on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex or national origin in consideration for an award.

Pursuant to the provisions of Sections 1770 to 1777, inclusive, of the Labor Code of the State of California, the Board of Supervisors has ascertained the general prevailing rate of per diem wages for each craft or type of workman needed to execute the proposed contract, and it will be required that not less than said rates be paid to all such workmen employed or engaged on the work. Complete wage rate schedules are on file at the offices of the Board of Supervisors and the County Road Department and are included in the contract specifications available at the Road Department.

Furthermore, minimum wage rates for this project as predetermined by the Secretary of Labor (Federal) are set forth in the special provisions.

If there is a difference in the minimum wage rates predetermined by the Secretary of Labor, the prevailing wage rates determined by the Department of Transportation or by the Board of Supervisors for similar classifications of labor, the Contractor and his subcontractors shall pay not less than the highest wage rate.

Pursuant to Section 1770 of the Labor Code, the Department has ascertained the general prevailing rate of wages in the county in which the work is to be done, to be as listed in the State of California, Department of Transportation publication entitled Equipment Rental and General Prevailing Wage Rates, dated May, 1976.

The rate of compensation for any classification not listed in the schedule, but which may be required to execute the proposed contract, shall be commensurate and in accord with the specified rates for similar or comparable classifications or for those performing similar or comparable duties.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS: Bidders must satisfy themselves by personal examination of location of the proposed work and by such other means as they may prefer as to the actual conditions and requirements of the work, and shall not at any time after submission of the bid dispute, complain, or assert that there was any misunderstanding in regard to the nature or amount of work to be done.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Education of the Pomona Unified School District will receive bids for the Milk and Milk By-Products requirements of the District for 1976-77.

Each bid and bidder shall be in accordance with Pomona Unified School District Administrative Regulation 3323.1 and Bid Form on file at the Business Office of said Board, in the Purchasing Department, Education Center, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, CA 91766, where prospective bidders may secure copies.

Each bid must be accompanied by a Bidder's Bond (issued by a Surety Company accredited by the Board of Education) for not less than five per cent (5%) of the amount of the bid, made payable to the order of the POMONA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT, shall be sealed and filed in THE OFFICE OF THE PURCHASING AGENT, PURCHASING DEPARTMENT, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, CA 91766, on or before 11:00 A.M., June 16, 1976, at which time and place the bids will be opened. (Government Code No. 53068 prohibits accepting bids after the designated time). Bid must be marked to indicate name of bid and opening date. The District will recognize Sections 4331 and 4332 Government Code.

The above mentioned Bidder's Bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract, if awarded the work, and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into a contract after being requested to do so by the Board of Education.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a Faithful Performance Bond in an amount equal to 10% of the contract price, said bonds to be secured by a Surety Company, or Surety Companies, satisfactory to the Board of Education.

The Board of Education reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and/or waive any informality in the bid. No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of ten days after the date set for the opening thereof.

By the order of the Board of Education of the Pomona Unified School District.

UNLIMITED OPPORTUNITY
Is there such a thing? Walker & Lee — the leader in Real Estate Service — needs professional sales people now to staff a rapidly growing number of new offices. There is no limit to your earnings. And because these new offices are all company-owned, (not independent franchises), there is no limit to your potential for growth into management. If you have some success in any kind of sales, you will probably do better with us.
